Our Heritage In Pawn?

MR. BENNETT'S deal with Mr. Wenner-Gren, which would hand over one-tenth of British Columbia's area and treasure to a foreign syndicate, is full of danger for the people of this province.

In the first place, we do not know what we are giving away. No one can possibly know what wealth is contained in the 40,000 square miles north of Fort McLeod. What timber, what minerals, what water power, oil, gas and other resources will be revealed by the surveys?

Even the benefactors of this bounty confess that they do not know. If they don't know, how can Mr. Bennett know? But obviously, no organization as experienced as these international financiers would embark on such a venture unless it promised fabulous rewards. And these rewards represent nothing but the heritage of the people of British Columbia.

Does Mr. Bennett even know that the Wenner-Gren interests have the money to finance such a colossal undertaking? How can he be sure that this mysterious syndicate is not seeking a franchise and a monopoly in order to peddle it in the market-places of the world, using our assets as a trading device? Is this a bona-fide deal or a mere stock promotion?

Clearly Mr. Bennett does not know very much about this syndicate when, by his own admission, he did not know, until the fact was published in the press, that his right-hand man, Mr. Einar Gunderson, was one of the syndicate's three directors.

It is unthinkable that a government employee, president of the government's railway, should be involved personally and financially in a deal between the government and private interests. It is incredible that Mr. Bennett did not find these things out before he consummated the deal.

Secondly, apart from Mr. Gunderson, whom are we dealing with? We are dealing with a mysterious syndicate whose backer, Mr. Wenner-Gren, was black-listed during the early days of the war by both Great Britain and the United States for his intimate dealings with the German government, especially with the Luftwaffe chief, Goering. Are these the kind of people who should possess one-tenth of British Columbia?

Thirdly, this deal would close off a vast section of the north, with all its resources, to Canadian enterprise.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, for example, a long-established and famous Canadian organization, along with many others, will be barred from the Wenner-Gren empire under the terms of the "memo of intent." It points out that it has, over the years, produced some $2½ billions worth of mineral wealth for the people of Canada and rightly asks why it should be prevented from producing further wealth, under Canadian management, in the area of monopoly. The same restrictions, of course, apply to any other Canadian company.

In short, this whole deal appears to be improvident, ill-considered, and with the wrong people. Through the association of Mr. Gunderson, it smacks of political patronage on a staggering scale.

All British Columbians who value their heritage should insist that their members in the legislature examine every detail of this scheme before a tenth of the province is placed in pawn.

Gunderson Defends Role In Huge Northern Project

By PETER MURRAY

Einar Gunderson said today he "can't see why" he shouldn't act at the same time as executive vice-president of the government-owned PGE and director of the Swedish firm planning a mammoth industrial empire in northern B.C.

The former Social Credit finance minister and government economic adviser was revealed Wednesday as one of three directors of the Wenner-Gren B.C. Development Co.

Not Director When Deal Signed

Premier Bennett said it was billion-dollar scheme to build the first he had heard of his 400-mile railway from the president's new appointment.

"That could possibly be," Mr. Gunderson commented today. "I must have forgotten to tell him. I'm on so many companies."

In a telephone interview with The Times from his Vancouver PGE office, Mr. Gunderson said there was no conflict between the two positions.

"We might as well be in a different province," he said. "The two railways are not serving the same area at all."

The Wenner-Gren interests, backed by Swedish industrialist Birger Strid of Stockholm and financier Axel Wenner-Gren, Bernard Gore of London, signed plan as the first step of the for the company and Premier

Police Nab Two

A Victoria man, Barry Irwin Keele, 26, no fixed address, was charged in city police court today with the armed holdup Monday of James Bay branch of Canadian Bank of Commerce.

He reserved election of trial until Friday morning to enable him to obtain counsel.

Saanich policemen, Det. Robin Stewart and Const. Robert A. Peterson, picked up Keele and a companion as they were about to step out of a car on Tolmie Avenue in Saanich at 12:40 a.m. today.

The two were arrested a few minutes later by city detectives Alex Briggs and Gus Munro, who had been working on the case since the robbery at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

The charge stated Keele committed the robbery with an offensive weapon and obtained $3,000 from the bank.

NO MONEY FOUND

None of the money has been recovered.

The second man is being detained, but may be released, police said.

Two men were responsible for the hold-up, according to witnesses. One man remained outside the bank in a stolen getaway car.

Apparently the hold-up men switched to a second car after having abandoned the stolen car after the hold-up.

WENT TO SEATTLE

Police said the two suspects had driven to Nanaimo Monday, and had gone aboard the 4:15 p.m. ferry to Vancouver. Then they drove to Seattle, where they spent Wednesday, and it is believed they had just arrived back from their trip when arrested.

Keele appeared in court wearing a brown tweed topcoat and open-necked shirt.

Mr. Gunderson said he had not acted as economic advisor to the government for a year. He said he was asked to become a director of the Wenner-Gren company because "they

109-YEAR-OLD VALENTINE FOR CENTENARIAN

A fragile, lace-edged Valentine that her mother gave father during their courting days in 1848, was presented today to Mrs. Marion Holdcroft, 412 Linden, who celebrates her 100th birthday Feb. 27. Turned up this week by her son, Gordon, the Valentine contains a wistful verse entitled "Sincere Faith." Thirty-two years later, Mr. Barber noted on the back, "The same to each other, thank God! now as ever. Proved off in sorrow as in joy. J.B." The Valentine was found among some old papers. ## SYMES TO APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE

DUNCAN—Appeal proceedings will be launched to save Thomas Sydney Symes from the gallows, it was indicated today by his counsel, Alistair I. Macdonald.

Symes, 31, was found guilty in Nanaimo Assize Court Wednesday of the murder of Paul Richard Powling, and was sentenced to hang May 14.

"I have received no definite instructions regarding an appeal," Mr. Macdonald said, "but the usual course of events is that verdicts in matters such as this are appealed. Appeals are almost a matter of course." (See earlier story, Page 12.)

CAREER IN BRIEF

Einar Gunderson —Who Is He?

By MONTE ROBERTS

Einar Gunderson is basically an accountancy-trained man of business, who on at least one occasion has stated, "neither modestly nor immodestly, 'I know dollars.'"

He is one of those rare individuals to whom a balance sheet makes sense at first glance.

As a business man, he is almost completely unknown to the general public. But his name has frequently made headlines in connection with the government of British Columbia.

Since the Bennett government took office in 1952, Mr. Gunderson has performed a variety of tasks for it, and for agencies under its direction.

He has been minister of finance; economic adviser on federal-provincial relations; trade envoy on trips to Japan, the United Kingdom, Sweden, Norway, West Germany, France and Switzerland; and once-elected, twice-defeated candidate for a seat in the provincial legislature. At present he is executive vice-president of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company; and a member of the B.C. Toll Highway and Bridges authority.

During 1953, after failing to win a seat in the 1953 general election and again in a by-election the same year, he served as minister of finance, turning over his portfolio to Premier Bennett on the eve of the opening of the February, 1954, session of the legislature.

But throughout 1954 he kept an office in the legislative buildings, served as "unofficial" finance minister, and reportedly continues to serve as one of Premier Bennett's closest advisers on matters of policy.

Although he ran three times for the legislature under the Social Credit banner, Mr. Gunderson has not, so far, anticipated a return to politics.

Cabinet Action Expected Soon

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The government is agreed on the principle of increasing old age pensions and other social security payments but a decision still remains to be made on the amount of the increase and the manner in which it is to be paid.

Informed sources said the increase would be between $5 and $10.

The question was discussed during the Liberal caucus Wednesday.

While there was no definite indication given of the government's decision, Liberal members of Parliament came away from the caucus convinced that the government was agreed that there should be an increase in the pension payments.

Three Suggestions Advanced

Three suggestions are: (1) A flat $10 increase to be paid as a supplementary allowance with a means test to old age pensioners 70 years and over and to those receiving the old-age security payments, in the group 65 to 70. (There are many MPs opposed to the "means" test principle being revived for the aged.)

(2) A straight percentage increase across the board of about 15 per cent. This would provide an increase to pensioners of around $6. (The argument for the percentage increase is that it should be applied to family allowance payments as well and many MPs favor that proposition.)

(3) A $10 increase to the pensioners but excluding the family allowances. This would cost the treasury about $150,000,000 annually if it is made available not only to the aged but to blind pensioners, disabled pensioners and veterans or their widows.

Straight $10 Increase Favored

Favored proposition appears to be the straight $10 boost in pension payments without a means test. Members don't like the first proposition because of the idea of attaching a means test to the supplementary payment. They don't like the percentage increase because it would work out to less than $10 for pensioners.

However, the government must proceed cautiously as adding a $150,000,000 burden to the treasury is a heavy load at this time when Ottawa is confronted with the expected early implementation of the national hospitalization scheme.

In order to hold down the added load it might be that the government will only go for a $5-a-month or at the most a $7-a-month increase in pensions, the feeling being that implementation of the national hospitalization scheme would ease the burden on pensioners as they would no longer have hospital bills to worry about.

A $7-a-month increase would cost the treasury about $100,000,000.

RCN'S 'JOSEPH CYR' IN TROUBLE AGAIN

Imposter Waldo Demara Turns Up Again, As Teacher

NORTH HAVEN, Me. (AP)—

A new, well-liked schoolmaster on this island was identified by police today as a brilliant imposter, with distinguished, though brief, careers as Royal Canadian Navy surgeon, theologian and doctor of philosophy.

Detectors said the man arrested used the name of Martin Godgart and was an instructor since September in the town's small high school. He also was superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school and a Boy Scout leader.

But police said Godgart admitted he is Ferdinand Waldo Demara.

Officers said Demara, about 35, will be taken to Augusta, the state capital. He has been charged with false pretences in obtaining a teacher's certificate.

Demara has been in Maine before. In the late 1940s he was on the faculty of Notre Dame Institute at Alfred as Cecil Boyce Havmann, a doctor of philosophy in zoology.

He also posed as Robert Linton French, Ph.D., but his most spectacular role was as Dr. Joseph C. Cyr, Canadian in the Korean campaign who had been praised, at least by laymen, for his skill in difficult surgical procedures.

A local resident told police he noted a similarity between Godgart and the man in a magazine story on Demara two years ago.

Fingerprints of Demara matched those of the North Haven teacher.

Baby Shot in Head In Strike Violence

PRINCETON, Ind. (AP)—

Charges in this strike-bound community were opened for noon prayers today "has slight improvement was reported in the condition of a non-striker's baby, shot through the head."

Hospital officials reported Julia Ann Russell, four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Russell, still in critical condition but slightly improved.

The baby, struck by one of seven bullets fired into her parents'

trailer home at Oakland City early Wednesday, is paralyzed on her left side but is able to take food.

The International Association of Machinists, on strike at the plant since Nov. 5 over dismissals, offered a $1,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the person who fired the bullets.

Earlier, Potter and Brumfield offered $2,500 reward in the trailer shooting and in previous incidents, in which a non-striker's cottage was dynamited and another's home was peppered with shot.

Victoria Girl to Tell Story Of Miracle Escape From Wreck

Why was 13-year-old Anita

Goertz saved by an apparent miracle when her father's yacht was wrecked off the coast of Spain last January and all the rest of her family drowned?

In Weekend Magazine, included with next Saturday's Times, an exclusive article by Eva-Lis Wurios will say the people of Aviles, the little village on the northern coast of Spain where the tragedy occurred believe that "God must have a plan for her."

Anita's father, Helmuth

Goertz, widely known Victoria photographer; her mother and brother drowned when the Goertz 47-ton yacht was caught in the grip of a fearful storm and broken to pieces close to shore.

Horrified spectators saw the yacht break up—but some considerable time later a giant wave deposited a dark-haired child on the sands.

It was Anita.

The girl later recovered from her ordeal at Gijon and was subsequently brought back to Canada to live with her uncle in Edmonton.

In the Weekend article Miss Wurios recounts the tragedy, capturing all its horror, and relates how the people of the little fishing village have reacted to it. "They tell a stranger quite simply: 'She is a child of God, this little one. She is in His hands.'"

Anita agrees. In a companion piece in Weekend she tells her own story of the tragedy to Stephen Franklin. The former Victoria school girl in her uncle's house, told Mr. Franklin: "Yes, I think it was a miracle."

Russ Develop Deadly Rocket

LONDON (AP)—The British government says the Soviet Union is developing a nuclear-headed rocket that can climb more than 100 miles into space at speeds of more than 5,000 miles an hour.

To prevent possible attack by such weapons, Defence Minister Duncan Sandys told the House of Commons Wednesday night, Britain must be prepared to meet it with devastating retaliation.

PROJECT

wished Canadians on the board.

There will be more British Columbians appointed directors of the firm in the near future, he said.

Another reason Mr. Gunderson gave for his appointment was that the other two directors were going to be out of the province a good deal of the time and he would be here to act on their behalf.

Mr. Gunderson said at present he held only one share in the company to qualify him for membership on the board of directors.

The Wenner-Gren Foundation is a "non-profit" organization in any case, he added.

To a comment by Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory criticizing his dual capacity as Wenner-Gren director and economic advisor to the government, Mr. Gunderson said:

"I wonder if Mr. Gregory is still fighting the 1953 by-election?"

It was a reference to the spirited contest for the Victoria seat vacated by Percy Wright to make room for Mr. Gunderson after his defeat in the 1953 election.

Mr. Gregory won out and the government gave up its attempts to get Mr. Gunderson elected to the legislature.

Reaction was swift to the disclosure that Mr. Gunderson had been appointed to the Wenner-Gren firm.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan said he should resign from "one or the other" of his positions with the Swedish interests and the PGE.

"It's not ethical, Mr. Strachan said.

The CCF leader also charged that Premier Bennett's statement that he had not known of Mr. Gunderson's appointment was "unbelievable."

"It's too far-fetched," he said. "Our credulity has already been stretched to the breaking point by some of their actions but this is too much," Mr. Strachan said.

The Opposition leader said he expected to find an opportunity during the Throne Speech debate within the next week to "cover the whole issue" of the Wenner-Gren development.

"INTERESTING"

Mr. Strachan said it was "interesting to note that Mr. Gunderson was economic advisor to the government when the initial negotiations for this project took place."

"His close association with the government until now, and the fact that he is now the director of a company which promises one of the largest developments in this province, must raise the question of the ethic of his conduct in the minds of the people of this province," he said.

"FIRST I'VE HEARD"

When Premier Bennett was queried on the matter he told reporters:

"It's the first I've heard of it. I have no knowledge that Mr. Gunderson is on the board, all I know about is the officers of the company was that mentioned in the memorandum of intention."

"Anyway, he's a private citizen."

Lands Minister Williston also said he didn't know about Mr. Gunderson's appointment.

IMPARTIAL?

Mr. Gregory said:

"It does not seem to be possible that Mr. Gunderson could perform his duty as economic advisor to the province of British Columbia impartially, and at the same time be a director of the company on whose behalf such a vast area of the province has been placed under reserve."

Company director Bernard Gore, who will manage the B.C. operations, said he was "astounded" that Mr. Gunderson should be attacked.

"His position with our company has nothing to do with the PGE," Mr. Gore said.

The development plan as a whole was questioned today from a number of quarters.

WARNING

Prominent Canadian industrialist and financier Ronald Graham warned that the scheme "might come a cropper in the end."

"Have these people got their money to follow through?" Mr. Graham asked in a telephone interview from Beverly Hills, Calif., where he is holidaying. "There have been other schemes before this."

B.C. trade officials urged the government not to rush into an agreement with Wenner-Gren.

"It is so large in concept that we hope the citizens of B.C. and interested bodies will have the opportunity to examine it and submit their ideas before anything is finalized," said Brenton

He also said: (1) Atomic bombs are in steady production in Britain, (2) The RCAF is equipped with a substantial stock of A-bombs and (3) Britain has almost completed development of its first "megaton" bomb (the technical term usually applied to the hydrogen bomb).

After hearing Sandys' report, the House voted 302 to 243 in support of the Macmillan government's defence policies.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today notified the Western European Union council of its intention to cut the size of its troop commitments in West Germany.

Similar notification is expected to be made later today to the NATO council in Paris.

S. Brown, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

"GIVEAWAY"

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C.-Yukon Chamber of Mines, said he feared the government was "giving away" one-tenth of the province to a single corporation.

"If the government clamps a reserve on the area for Wenner-Gren it will block the plans of many other large companies interested in northern B.C.," Mr. Elliott said.

Dr. M. V. Smitheringale, well-known B.C. consulting mining engineer and geologist, said the scheme was "outrageous" and "out of order."

Mr. Elliott said he knew of at least six companies that have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the area and should have equal rights to stake claims.

"Consolidated's Sullivan mine has produced $2,500,000,000 worth of silver, lead, zinc and tin," he said. "Surely if there are lead and zinc deposits in this McLeod Lake area, they should have the right to go after them."

UN REJECTS RUSS CHARGE AGAINST U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations steering committee today rejected a Soviet demand for a General Assembly debate on the Eisenhower Middle East doctrine and other United States "aggressive actions."

The 16-country committee decided against the proposed debate by a vote of 8 to 6.

Those voting against inscription of the Soviet complaint were Italy, France, Dominican Republic, Nationalist China, Denmark, Peru, Turkey and El Salvador. Voting for it were the United States, Britain, India, Egypt, Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Pakistan abstained. Assembly President Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand did not vote.

Russia was expected to open the issue on the floor of the 80-country assembly, but there appears little chance the committee decision will be reversed.

nounced his views on Social Credit monetary theories.

During the 1953 campaign, the Conservative party arranged for questions at nearly all of his campaign meetings, asking for his stand on monetary reform. In each case, he defeated attempts of the hecklers to pin him down.

ORTHODOX

During the same campaign P. A. Gagliardi, minister of highways, said Mr. Gunderson "is the most orthodox financier in Canada."

Mr. Gunderson has made an outstanding success of his private business career. He is a partner in the accountancy firms of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co., Vancouver, and Gunderson, Stokes Walton and Cockburn, Victoria.

Mr. Gunderson is a director of many business organizations, two of the principal ones being the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which handles the majority of provincial government banking transactions, and the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Foundation, his directorship in which was effective Nov. 21, 1956, and revealed Wednesday.

A stocky, broad-shouldered man with a full, strong face and shining silver hair, he projects his quiet confidence better from the public platform.

At one time he said "I have always wanted to get into government business."

ALBERTA START

His first connection with government was in Alberta, where he did a small amount of auditing for the United Farmers' government, later set up the lands and mines department, income tax department, and the sales tax department.

In each case, he was the organizing force.

Einar Maynard Gunderson was born in Cooperstown, North Dakota, in 1899, but much of his young life and his advanced education was in Canada.

He graduated from the University of Saskatchewan, served for five years with a firm of chartered accountants in Edmonton before entering government service, and returned to private practice as a chartered accountant, also in Edmonton, in 1936.

AT VANCOUVER

In 1945, he moved to Vancouver, and entered into partnership with G. W. Thompson & Co., income tax specialists, before joining his present firm.

He is married, and has two sons and one daughter. One of the sons, Derek, is with the James Lovick Advertising Agency, which arranged the press conference following announcement of the development project.

'EMPIRE OF RICHES'

Prince George's '40-Year Dream'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Businessmen here—pioneers and young alike—chuckled and radiated enthusiasm Wednesday at the thought of being the gateway to a planned gigantic industrial empire.

C. A. Warner, editor of the Prince George Citizen, said of the fabulous plans—announced Tuesday in Victoria—of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren for a complete survey of the 40,000 square-mile area north of Prince George:

"It's a 40-year dream, about to come true. It confirms the prediction of the pioneers that our vast hinterland is an empire of riches."

"It consolidates Prince George as the gateway and the hub of north-central B.C."

The southern boundary of the "Wenner-Gren reserve" runs through Fort McLeod, 75 miles north of Prince George and the southern terminus of the proposed monorail railway.

The northern extension of the PGE Railway will pass through

Fort McLeod, alongside the Hart Highway, to the Peace River.

Board of Trade leaders like Al Bowie, Wallie West, Harold Moffat, saw three years ago when the city was hit by a three-month woodworkers' strike that new industry and business must arrive for the city to continue prosperous.

While the Wenner-Gren development plans remain indefinite until results of the current survey are known, they include such industries as pulp mills, steel mills and hydro-electric power plants.

An estimated 4,000,000 horsepower roars undeveloped in the river system north of Prince George.

The Rocky Mountain trench is often described by mining men as a "mineral paradise."

"It is, perhaps, the most highly mineralized belt in the province," said Thomas Elliott, manager of the B.C.-Yukon Chamber of Mines, at Vancouver.

The northern extension of the PGE Railway will pass through

PM Under Criticism As Culture Debated

(From Times News Services)

A Quebec Progressive Conservative has described Hon. Louis St. Laurent as the prime minister who has done the most "to violate the Canadian constitution."

The prime minister, in the House when J. Wilfrid Dufresne delivered his attack, did not reply. But Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L. Portneuf), whip for Quebec Liberal members, told Mr. Dufresne:

"Oh, but you can be ridiculous and unjust."

Mr. Dufresne, member for Quebec West—Mr. St. Laurent is the member for Quebec East—said: "It is highly regrettable to realize that the one who will have violated the Canadian constitution the most, and contributed the most to diminish the influence that French-speaking Canadians must have in Canada, is himself a French-speaking prime minister who comes from the province of Quebec."

Mr. Dufresne spoke as the House continued debate on the government's proposal to establish the Canada Council with a $100,000,000 federal grant to promote culture.

Social Credit members continued at the lone opposers of the council's creation. "We see in this a method for promoting state culture," said George McLeod (S.Okanagan-Revelstoke).

Both Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and CCF Leader Coldwell reiterated their support of the council, but were concerned about how much control Parliament will have over it.

Mr. Dufresne, who opposed the proposal to have the council distribute $50,000,000 in capital grants to universities, on the grounds that it would infringe on provincial rights, said Mr. St. Laurent's actions contradict his words.

"The prime minister of Canada will certainly never be able to boast of having promoted unity. His most important contribution will have been one of national disunity."

Socred Fears 'Sweetest Pork Barrel'

Ray Thomas (S.Okanagan-Revelstoke) asked the government to announce that no former Liberal cabinet ministers or politicians will be appointed as members of the council.

"I hope it will not be a haven for tired and retired politicians. Political appointments could make the council 'the sweetest pork barrel' this country has known in a long time."

"Stay clear of culture vultures."

Thomas M. Barnett (CCF, Comox-Alberni) said Mr. Thomas' fears can only arise from his own inexperience with the operations of the cultural activities branch of the Alberta department of economic affairs.

Mr. Thomas, he said, must have a low opinion of Canadians to suggest that the council could become a political weapon. If that situation should arise, members of Parliament would bring up the matter in the Commons and do something about it.

A veteran criminal lawyer, who says he's handled some divorce cases in his time, suggested in the Senate that naming of co-respondents in parliamentary divorces might reduce "some of the monkey business that has been going on."

Senator J. W. de B. Farris (L. British Columbia) said it is well known that many cases from Quebec are "routine." The same detectives appeared as witnesses from time to time to give evidence of adultery.

"If the petitioner were compelled to give the name of the co-respondent there might be less monkey business going on than there is today."

The 78-year-old senator spoke in support of proposed rule changes for the Upper Chamber's divorce committee in its consideration of cases from Quebec and Newfoundland. All other provinces handle their own divorce cases in courts.

Replying in the House to a question from Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. St. Laurent said the Canadian government has no reluctance to the calling of a Commonwealth conference but there had been no correspondence about such a meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker had noted a Canadian Press dispatch from

Woman Prays In Fiery Death

Death Toll 14 As Rest Home Razed;
Many Flee on Crutches, in Wheelchairs

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Fire "all of a sudden" enveloped a 71-year-old, three-story rest home Wednesday. Fourteen patients died, many of them in their beds.

Thirteen of the 29 other persons in the building needed hospital treatment.

Firemen told of seeing one woman kneeling in prayer in her bed as tongues of flames swirled over her. They had no chance to rescue her.

Altogether 17 patients, 10 employees and three children fled the blazing building. They hobbled out on crutches, guided their wheelchairs onto the lawn or raced out on foot.

LICENCE SUSPENDED

The home—in which one person died in a 1942 blaze—was operating under licence suspension.

Edmund C. Zimmerer, state health commissioner, said the licence of Mrs. Ivy Lee Gilmore had not been renewed after an inspection Jan. 30. Zimmerer said he withheld renewal "pending certain corrections at the home." He did not elaborate. But the Council Bluffs public service director said he and a health department inspector looked over the home last month and found that it met requirements for fire safety.

Art Ranson, 81, said he was playing pitch with a fellow patient when the blaze broke out.

"We heard the hollering and jumped up to see what was happening. It was fire. It did go fast. I can't remember how we got out—but I lost all my chewing tobacco."

Winner will be offered employment with the company for a period of 16 weeks. If he accepts, the company will award him the scholarship for university fees for the ensuing year.

Applicants will be interviewed by a college committee and the winner will be selected by the Hudson's Bay.

Children Painting For Jaycee Contest

Hundreds of school children began this week to paint for an art competition sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Open to all children in the Greater Victoria school district, the best paintings submitted will be sent to Japanese schools for display.

The competition is part of a Jaycee plan to exchange children's paintings with those of pupils of other countries.

The plan originated when Japanese pupils, ranging between the ages of seven and 14, sent 200 paintings to Victoria. They are now in all junior high schools and have aroused widespread interest.

The Junior Chamber eventually hopes to hold a public exhibition of the Japanese paintings when the work of the Victoria pupils would be shown before they are sent abroad.

Britain Takes the Plunge

BRITAIN IS ABOUT TO MAKE the largest shift in its economic policy since the repeal of the Corn Laws. The free-trade area of western Europe, with Britain as its leading partner, was only a vague aspiration last year. It is to become a reality this year.

By midsummer, the British Government announces, the major European states will begin to remove the tariffs now dividing them and, over a period of years, will eliminate these barriers altogether, except in the case of farm products.

Britain thinks it must protect its own farmers from foreign competition and must continue to grant preferential tariff treatment to foodstuffs from the Commonwealth, especially from Australia and New Zealand. Canadian wheat should retain its present British market.

The most interesting point in the British Government's announcement is that the free trade union will be a purely economic and not a political undertaking.

The conception of a "third force," a new alignment of British and European power in competition with the United States and Russia, is flatly, and wisely, rejected.

If it were attempted its result would be to create new strains within the Western Alliance and even within the Commonwealth. After the shock of Suez Britain obviously is eager to repair its relations with the United States. After many blunders, the United States Government seems to realize that its whole foreign policy must fall if it cannot restore the confidence of essential American allies in Britain and Europe.

As a purely economic project, the European free trade area offers great possibilities, long understood by economists but neglected by politicians.

Criss-crossed and picket-fenced by trade barriers of every sort, the nations of Europe have never been able to concert their productive powers and maximize their wealth. They have maintained various economic industries in some countries and limited the output of their economic industries. Now they propose to open the whole European market to free competition and to create the equivalent of the great United States market, on which the towering American industrial structure has been built.

Both the United States and Canada have advocated these bold policies in Europe and must now commend and support them. Few things are more important to North America than the prosperity and hence the political stability of Britain and Europe.

It may be, however, that Canada must pay some economic price for the total change in British and European policy. Trading more among themselves, the European nations may, at the beginning anyway, buy somewhat less from North America.

The products of Europe, for example, will enter Britain under tariffs successively reduced until they disappear altogether. Tariffs or other restrictions can still be applied to most Canadian goods, except farmstuffs.

But in the end, if Europe achieves a new prosperity, its total foreign imports, including goods from Canada, should increase.

In the meantime the Canadian Government is right in believing that the main objective of British and European prosperity must outweigh any temporary losses in our overseas markets. After all, though trade between nations can never be balanced exactly, we cannot expect that Britain will go on forever buying far more from Canada than it sells here. The trade balance no doubt will continue in our favor but presumably will be reduced.

Fish or Cut Bait School Plan

CALGARY HAS APPLIED A "fish or cut bait" policy to lazy students in its high schools and, in the opinion of the Calgary school board, is receiving dividends from it in higher classroom morale and better marks.

The authorities in the Alberta city have apparently convinced their secondary school pupils that unless they work, they get out. While other factors probably enter into the picture, the midterm examinations conducted there determine whether a child shall stay in school or be pushed out.

By this policy, teachers report, the work of many classes has been improved. In some cases threat of expulsion has led to efforts doubling the marks of individual pupils.

On the face of it, Calgary appears to have reverted to the principles of an earlier school system and found them effective.

One point, however, is not explained in the news report on the experiment. No mention is made of what happens to the students who are thrown out. Conceivably they get jobs—or possibly they wander the streets.

No such spectacular method of dealing with the indifferent student has been applied in Greater Victoria. Authorities state, however, that some pressures are brought to bear on the lazy pupil. As one official noted, such individuals frequently solve the problem in their own negative way. They manage to get themselves into some form of trouble other than academic sloth which removes them from class. Emphasis here is placed on efforts to interest the student in his work. Where such attempts fail, say the authorities, means are found to ease them out of school—sometimes with special provision of work permits when they are below minimum employment age.

The Calgary method seems more dramatic. Its application may, moreover, have a sharper influence on others in the classes not working to capacity.

If educationists here argue that it makes no provision for the young people who are dismissed, Calgary could probably reply that no responsibility rests on the school system to care for them once they are out of school. The responsibility then rests with the parents and the individual.

The merits of the two methods of handling a major school problem might best be tested by a survey of the results. An analysis of that kind should be worth making.

NO PALLID REFLECTION By STUART KEATE 'Canadianize' the Navy

THE MAINGUY Commission was set up in 1949 at the request of Canada's defence minister, to inquire into certain "incidents" (technical mistakes) in His Majesty's Canadian ships Athabaskan, Crescent and Magnificent.

Sittings were held at Halifax, Esquimalt, Vancouver and Ottawa, and a visit was paid to the U.S. naval establishment at Seattle. Of 238 witnesses heard, over 150 were petty officers and ratings. Of these, more than 50 appeared at their own request, as a result of advertisements in the newspapers.

In the light of the recent dust-up caused by an article in this space last January 22, and referred to here yesterday, the Mainguy Report makes interesting reading. What it says, in effect, is: "Let's make the Canadian Navy really Canadian."

This was the tenor of the January 22 article. I reported with undisguised approval that this appeared to be the spirit of officers and men in HMCS Ontario, and quoted one of them to the effect that the RCN could be "pound for pound," the best Navy in the world. I found this spirit wholly admirable.

This spirit was previously, noted by the Mainguy commission. On page 33 can be found this paragraph: "There was amongst the men a very real and almost universal opinion that the Canadian Navy was not sufficiently Canadian. The absence of identification on the uniforms of Canadian ratings gave rise to many unpleasant international incidents in ports where American sailors were present. While the incidents often resulted from ignorance, ill manners and unfortunate national prejudices, there is no doubt that the relations between Canadian, American and British sailors were greatly impaired by the continual mistaking of Canadian ratings for British sailors."

And further on: "However regrettable it may seem to some people, an opinion is widely held amongst many ratings and some officers that the 'Nelson tradition' is overdone, and that there is still too great an attempt to make the Canadian Navy a pallid imitation and reflection of the British Navy. This is in no sense a criticism of the magnificent traditions of the Royal Navy, but is a natural outcome of the growth of a healthy Canadian national consciousness."

In much more discreet language than was used in this space January 22, the Commission touched on the delicate question of class, social position, prestige, as it applies to officer-man relations, as follows:

"Many Canadian officers receive their early training with the Royal Navy. They do not in all cases appreciate that the RCN seaman presents a different problem from the Royal Navy seaman. While no doubt conditions have changed in the RN as they have elsewhere, differences of speech, of education, of social environment, have generally made it easier for ratings to accept it. We have few officers in the Canadian Navy who maintain their position by the social prestige attached to their office. Until recently, Canadian Navy officers have received their first five years' training in the Royal Navy. As the writer of the memorandum relates, during this time they have had superimposed on them a type of life and a style of leadership not only foreign to themselves and their own social background but also to the social background of the men whom they command. There is no form of artificial superiority which Canadians resent more than the variety imported from another land."

In concluding its findings, the Mainguy Report says:

"We have also sought to interpret the wishes of the great majority of men by stressing the need to 'Canadianize' our Navy. In so doing, we wish to record that in common with most thoughtful Canadians, we have an abiding admiration and respect for the grand traditions and institutions of the Royal Navy and for their continuing beneficent and steady force wherever British and Canadian ships may sail. We hope that all that is good in these shared traditions will remain with us and that only what is inefficient and inconsistent with our national need, character, dignity and special conditions will disappear from the Navy of Canada."

So there it is. It appears that my January 22 discovery of a "new" Navy was scooped by a full eight years! (Continued Tomorrow)

The Book and the Act

Silence's article "The Rolled up Side-walk" illustrating the effect the Lord's Day Act has upon individual liberty, is very pertinent, especially his comment upon the "fulfillment of enforcing moral matters" by legislation.

Since this Act is based upon the Law Covenant given to the nation of Israel, the question arises, why was it given to them?

The Apostle Paul asks and answers the same question in Galatians 3, which records that the Law showed-up transgressions and that Christians were foolish in depending upon it, because by it none were declared righteous with God. It was to operate only until Christ came to fulfill and complete its demands.

Because of Jesus' atoning Sacrifice, faith in Him superseded the Law: "therefore let no man judge you . . . in respect of a feast-day, or in an observance of the new moon, or of a Sabbath." (Col. 2:14-17).

Not to fleshly descendants of Abraham, but to spiritual Israel was given the new Covenant based on a love so exacting—as described in Cor. 1:13—that even sincere faithful Christians cannot attain to it in their present imperfect condition.

The practice of such a love requires no Lord's Day Act.

The Wages of Gin

On Monday morning, through an inaccurate setting on my clock radio, I had the misfortune to listen to a daily program emanating from the Kamloops Radio Station called "Chapel in the Sky." This program is sponsored by one P. A. Gagliardi.

After paying doubtful respect and offering various supplications to the Almighty Deity, he deviated to the subject of alcohol. He neglected to mention that his self-righteous Provincial Government had no compunction or twinge of conscience in grabbing the profits from merchandising this horrible scourge of mankind. He did, however, state that it cost the Government ten times the revenue from the sale of alcohol to correct the ravages that it caused to the population.

As the Government made over twenty two million dollars profit last year, excluding the sales tax that they collect, I challenge Mr. Gagliardi to prove that the Social Credit Government spent over two hundred million dollars on the correction and rehabilitation of the victims of the grape and corn.

I would offer Mr. Gagliardi this advice. He should, either keep to his religion or to his politics, for if they are mixed the outlook for the population is ominous indeed.

If he wishes to continue to utter such exaggerated inaccuracies, may I offer the suggestion that he move to the Cariboo. There they have more of it, and are used to spreading it thicker.

Relative Pay

I was struck by two points in that news story headed "Teachers' Wage Talks Collapse," as between your city's school board and the elementary school teachers, as follows: (1) The association earlier had turned down a 10 per cent increase in wages offered by the board; and (2) The teachers claimed it takes too long to reach a liveable salary; starting salaries are too low; and that teachers are not paid what they are really worth to the community. (C.P.)

This reader is in no position to comment constructively, one way or the other, in the above situation; but it is rather curious to ponder the fact—if indeed it is a fact?—that teachers of the nation's youth (Canada's No. 1 possession) are not worth "at least the equivalent of skilled workers!"

In the course of a letter on "Trustees, Teachers and Pay" on your editorial pages of that same issue, I find my thought neatly put thus: "It is, the teachers say, necessary to offer attractive salaries to young people who are willing to spend the necessary years taking teacher-training at colleges and universities, particularly when it is possible for young people to obtain the generally high salaries of today with little knowledge and no training."

As a farmer I "get" that logic—and how? Well, as you know it meshes neatly with the flight of our young people from the farms—some term it "the escape hatch from hard work."

And there are many instances where alert young rural Canadians, with no special training or knowledge other than an aptitude for work, after a year or so in the secondary industries, earn more than their hard-working parents combined—though the latter have a lifetime of experience, plus a capital investment of $15,000 to $20,000 in their farm plant!

Whipping Post

Re your remarks on mollicoddling is not enough, pardon doesn't help.

In this age of the super educationalist and the mind doctors there seems no room for the practicalities. With all that these two vaunted experts have added to the business of training the human animal neither has the spine to state to the public that the child is an animal who must be trained with words and the rod to make him sweet to the taste.

Instead of all the hand-wringing and the tears why not lead the way here in Victoria and set up on the city's Roundabout Green a whipping post, at which these hard-eyed young animals can be divested of their trousers and whipped in the good old way. It would be pretty hard to remain a hero to your gang, once the bare bottom had been exposed to the public and the tears of remorse and pain had coursed down the hairless cheeks. I cannot see many repeaters after that, and I feel sure so simple and inexpensive a method will make our city one of the best examples of juvenile life on the continent.

At the same time let's have the rod back in the schools. There are few parents spineless enough to object to that, for then they could do as our fathers did, give licking for licking . . . if you get one at school . . . you get another at home.

Let's stop fooling around. Let's train our children as well as we train our animals . . . at least.

KIDNAPPERS ARE AT WORK

Diefenbaker and Bennett Reach Agreement on the Question of Soft Money

OTTAWA—The most interesting fact in Canadian politics today is that the long-term strategy of Premier Bennett already has largely succeeded just as it seems to be failing. That strategy is not complete yet, but it has gone much farther than the public has begun to realize. Essentially Mr. Bennett's plan, in joining Social Credit, was, first, to shuck off most of the Social Credit mythology; second, to kidnap the Conservative Party; third, to capture national office in Ottawa for a new right-wing but inflationist party.

Hutchison

It can now be recorded as an established fact that the Bennett theory of money (with some trifling disputes of detail) has kidnapped the mind of the Conservative Party, as represented by the mind of Mr. John Diefenbaker.

Whether Social Credit, in its Bennett version, can now proceed to capture the body of the Conservative Party—its electoral vote—remains to be seen. Mr. Diefenbaker obviously hopes to reverse that process. He is trying desperately to kidnap the body of Social Credit.

The elements in this unique equation are perfectly clear.

On the one hand, the Conservative

Party is relatively strong in Ontario and is growing stronger in the Maritimes, though it has minimal strength in Quebec. West of the Great Lakes the Conservative Party is a mere splinter and unlikely in the visible future to be anything else.

On the other hand, Social Credit, for all its boasts, is getting nowhere east of the Lakes, seems unable even to penetrate Saskatchewan, but is powerful in Alberta and British Columbia.

In plain mathematics this equation will be completed if the two-right parties can get together and the net result will be a powerful opposition party in national politics, the first effective opposition in modern times.

Until a few days ago, this hopeful prospect was frustrated by a difficulty apparently insuperable—Social Credit stood for a new, inflationary money system while the Conservative Party stood for orthodox finance.

Now it turns out that those who considered the difficulty insuperable had underestimated Mr. Diefenbaker. He has swept away the barrier with one speech. His recent utterances at Toronto, innocuous at first sight, are seen on closer examination to herald a fundamental and organic shift in national politics. The only question is whether Mr. Diefenbaker can carry through this bold enterprise.

To understand the Toronto speech, in terms of practical politics, it is necessary to recall the speeches of Mr. Bennett last year. He, not Mr. Diefenbaker, was the pioneer discoverer of the new theory that the Federal Government's anti-inflation policies are in fact inflationary.

Mr. Bennett holds that the Government is restricting credit to little businessmen, thereby restricting their output of goods and thus worsening the inflationary pressures.

This assumption is rejected, of course, by most economists both Liberal and Conservative, and is regarded by the non-partisan experts of Ottawa as Mad Hatter's economics.

Nevertheless, in his Toronto speech, Mr. Diefenbaker fully endorsed the Bennett theory, without mentioning the inventor's name.

His speech on money, his attack on high interest rates, his demand for more spending and less taxes, his advocacy of softer money and finally his statement that the Government's policies are inflationary could all have been uttered, by Mr. Bennett.

In their financial ideology, therefore, Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Bennett are united. The wider notions of original Social Credit have been conveniently forgotten but the core of that system—the theory of perpetual inflation—remains, though it is now paraded as the opposite in the most astounding paradox of these times.

In short, Mr. Bennett has tired to make Social Credit look orthodox and respectable; Mr. Diefenbaker has taken the financial orthodoxy of Conservatism and stood it on its head.

Without arguing the economics of these two parallel adventures one can see at once their immediate political intent—Mr. Diefenbaker is wooing the Social Credit vote out west. While Social Credit is planning to kidnap the Conservative Party, the Conservative Party has undertaken to kidnap Social Credit at the expense of abandoning historic Conservative policy.

Who will kidnap whom? That is the practical question emerging from Mr. Diefenbaker's Toronto speech.

The answer to that question must come mainly from Mr. Bennett, his thinking partner, Mr. Bonner; Premier Manning of Alberta, Mr. Solon Low and the other hierarchs of Social Credit. They now face a stark decision: Should they accept Mr. Diefenbaker's tacit offer of union, now that he accepts their theory of money; should they abandon the plan to kidnap the Conservative Party and join it instead?

The public answer given by Social Credit to all such offers is flatly negative. Social Credit is joining nobody. It is marching alone to Ottawa and, on the way, will destroy the Conservative Party.

The public answer given by the Conservative Party is also negative but decidedly vague.

At his first press conference conference, after he had been elected Conservative leader, Mr. Diefenbaker was asked outright if he planned any kind of deal with Social Credit. He replied, in this reporter's hearing, that he sought the support of everyone who was opposed to the St. Laurent Government. He left a bright lamp burning in the window for the Social Credit voters of the west.

In the nature of politics it seems unlikely that there can be any public union, or even the admission of private union between the Conservative and Social Credit Parties before the approaching election.

To admit that anything of the sort was under way, Mr. Diefenbaker would have to admit that he had no hope of success in the election under his own steam. Mr. Bennett would have to admit that he had bogged down and could not break eastward through the Saskatchewan boundary without Conservative help.

Such admissions can hardly be made now. But Mr. Bennett has lately executed a considerable retreat from his original predictions.

A year ago he was saying that Social Credit would win something like a hundred seats in the next Canadian Parliament, produce a stalemate and form a minority government.

A few weeks ago, after conferring in Victoria with Mr. Low, he cut those claims in half. Social Credit, he said, would win a minimum (i.e., a maximum) of 40 seats.

Clearly he has no hope of kidnapping the Conservative Party before the election of 1961 at earliest. And clearly Mr. Diefenbaker has no possible hope of winning a parliamentary majority this year without the help of Social Credit in the west, probably not even with it.

All the hard facts of election politics seem to be driving the two opposition parties together now that Mr. Diefenbaker has reoriented Conservative policy, left his party Conservative only in name and, in financial matters, left the Liberal Party as the only truly conservative party in the nation.

But whether, short of any public admission of marriage, the Conservative and Social Credit Parties can make private pre-election deals and post-election arrangements remains to be seen. Most likely all such possibilities will be indignantly denied lest they antagonize both orthodox Conservatives and the true doctrinaire Social Crediters.

The fact remains that for the first time Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Bennett are in full agreement on essentials. The foundation of ultimate union, under one label or another, has been laid. More important, Canadian politics have been totally split on new lines. The true issue of the election is simply hard money or soft—provided that the St. Laurent Government stands by its present policies.

The Pilgrimage

IN the days of long ago, when Judith was just growing up, the copy of "Pilgrim's Progress" stood on the third shelf down of the bookcase next to the living room window that overlooked the sea. Battered, calbound, with golden letters stamped upon its worn brown cover, it was a shabby little book.

It had been bought in a second-hand bookshop many years ago, Judith's mother said. Often, Judith wondered who had had the book before. Because always it opened at the picture of Christian's battle with Apollyon. The picture was badly grimed and thumb-marked as if eager hands had held it firmly many times.

The page opposite the picture was just as dirty and quite badly torn. But Judith could spell out the words, and, by reading, she made this part of the book her own.

Ruth

She read of Christian on the King's Highway, and how Apollyon straddled quite across it, and threw a flaming dart at Christian's breast and, after, wounded him in his head, and his hand and his foot. She read how the sorry combat lasted above half a day, and how Apollyon, wrestling with Christian, gave him a dreadful fall so that his sword flew out of his hand. She read how Christian, when he was almost pressed to death, nimbly reached out his hand and got back his precious sword.

She didn't read the rest of the book, because the theological discourses were too difficult and dull.

But her mother, who was skilled in storytelling, gave her the highlights of Christian's adventurous pilgrimage.

She heard about the Slough of Despond with its treacherous, slippery stepping-stones. She was glad when Christian's burden was loosened from his shoulders and fell from his back.

She knew about the man who was imprisoned in the iron cage of despair. She knew the Hill of Difficulty, the Valley of Humiliation, Doubting Castle with its owner Giant Despair, Prating Row, Vanity Fair, the Delectable Mountains and the River of Death—she imagined them all from her mother's telling of the story.

In her college days, Judith had to learn the history of the 17th century and Bunyan's place in its literature. She had to write essays on Bunyan's use of allegory, and on Bunyan's debt to the newly-translated version of the Bible.

As a serious student, she had to read Pilgrim's Progress diligently, and to memorize the passages which might be useful in her final examination.

Like most students, she forgot much of what she learned.

But, as she grew older and watched the world about her, she recognized many of the people and places described by Bunyan in his simple, vivid prose.

Probe of Juvenile Delinquency Tops Welfare Council's Plans

Greater Victoria's Community Welfare Council will concentrate efforts this year on a study of juvenile delinquency. The approach it will take to that question and the possible attack on the problem, pre-emptive action it will recommend will depend on the early findings of an interim committee led by B. C. Gillie and D. E. Woodsworth.

Decision to follow that course was taken after directors had well as a scarcity of trained workers to deal with cases. The welfare council also endorsed a proposal in favor of a rehabilitation centre here for the physically handicapped, following a report from Mrs. H. J. Seats.

Directors returned G. Conway Parrott to the presidency of the council, named W. H. L. Gillie honorary secretary. Chosen chairmen of standing committees were Mr. Gillie, constitution; Mrs. Elsie Purcell, recreation; Prof. R. T. Wallace, public relations; Ald. Lily Wilson, citizenship and Mrs. Seats, rehabilitation of the physically handicapped.

KEY ONTARIO LIBEL WITNESS FOUND DEAD

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—A key witness in a libel and slander action was found dead late Tuesday in the yard of her home here. The burned body was identified as that of Mrs. Maude Davis.

Police said a container of a type used for inflammable fluid was found beside the body. There were no signs of fire in the house and no indications of a struggle.

Mrs. Davis was to have been a witness in a libel and slander suit brought by Mrs. Madeline Howard, Woodstock, against a former minister and nine deacons of Oxford Street Baptist Church.

Mrs. Howard today dropped the action, which was started Tuesday. She consented to pay the legal costs of the suit.

Dangers From X-Rays

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Because of recent articles on the late dangers of too much radiation, many persons have been asking me if they should refuse to have their chest and their teeth X-rayed. After reading much on the subject, I doubt if there is any need for alarm. The dosage of X-rays given when a person is examined is too small to cause trouble. It is only when a person is treated with big doses of X-rays, as for a cancer, that years later there might be some trouble.

Several persons have begun worrying about the tiny amount of radiation that can come off the hands of a watch or clock, but such worry is foolish.

CHRONIC WORRIERS

A woman says that as long as she can remember, her mother has always been a terrible worrier. She has always felt very ill and about to die. Today, this mother is 77, and she still feels that one of her ailments is going to take her off any day. But now, her daughter fears she is following in the same habit. Recently when she found some glands in her armpit and groin and neck, she went to see a physician about them.

When he said they were of no consequence, she went to two more doctors. They, also, told her to forget them, but still she worries. She says, "I'm frantic with anxiety, and now I realize that I'm behaving just as my mother has always done. Nature is pulling me that way." How well the lady expresses it! So many of us inherit a tendency to anxiety that hounds us all our days. Some of us even get disgusted when the doctors at a great clinic examine us from head to foot and find nothing wrong! Many a time I've had to say to a disappointed and angry woman, "It isn't my fault that you haven't a cancer; I realize it would be nice for you to have a cancer; we could cut that out, but we cannot cut out this terrible fear of disease that you have day after day and year after year. That is something you will have to fight yourself; there is no drug I can give you to cure it."

MOST BABIES BORN IN MORNING

Probably most people have the idea that babies are usually born at night. Recently, Dr. Peter D. King, of Warren, Pa., studied the hours of birth of 33,765 babies born in several hospitals. When he compared the birth rates during the daylight hours, from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., with the rates during the 12 night hours, he did not find much difference. However, 48 per cent more births occurred around 3 a.m. than around 7 p.m. The figures were 1,632 as compared with 1,103. More babies, also, were born during the morning hours, from 3 a.m. to 11 a.m. than were born per hour in the period between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Dr. King found that another physician who had kept records in regard to births had reported that 62 per cent of the mothers went into labor between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Obviously, although about equal numbers of babies are born during the daylight and the night hours, the obstetrician has to spend much of his time working at night.

THE CHILD WHO "ROCKS"

There are a few children who, when put in their crib, will get on hands and knees and then rock back and forth, pounding their heels with their buttocks. Apparently, half-asleep, the child will keep this up for an hour or more, night after night. One of the ablest pediatricians I know says he has no idea why children do this. All he knows is that after a while they get over it.

Rev. D. Carr Chairman Victoria Presbytery

Rev. Douglas Carr, minister of Centennial United Church, was elected chairman of the Victoria presbytery, United Church of Canada, at the opening session of the two-day annual meeting being held at First United Church.

Re-elected to office were secretary Rev. T. H. Nuttall, Nanaimo, and treasurer, W. I. Land, Victoria. The officers will begin their term July 1.

The presbytery also agreed to let James Bay United Church study advantages of becoming a separate charge. Minister of James Bay and Victoria West United Churches, Rev. C. G.

MacKenzie, will resign in the spring.

Among 80 Vancouver Island ministers and laymen attending the conference are Dr. W. E. Taylor, president of the B.C. conference; Dr. Kenneth Prior, western field secretary of overseas missions; Rev. Roy Stobie of the Christian Leadership Training School in Naramata, B.C., and Dr. Percy Bunt, superintendent of home missions in B.C.

BUFFALO COATS

The RCMP annually get about 60 buffalo hides to make cold-weather jackets.

CHURCH PARLEY RAPS PINBALLS, OPEN SUNDAYS

Resolutions against pinball machines and wide-open Sundays were passed by the Victoria presbytery, United Church of Canada, at First United Church Wednesday.

On a motion by Rev. A. I. Higgins of First United Church, the presbytery voted "deep appreciation" of Mayor Percy Scudrah's campaign against gambling devices.

A second motion urged Premier W. A. C. Bennett to block legislation to make commercial Sunday sport legal in the province.

Snap B.C. Vote Under Fire By CCFer

The British Columbia government's snap election last September came under fire in the Legislature Wednesday when Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) said many British Columbians were disenfranchised because they were given only seven days in which to register as voters.

"This was a tricky piece of politics on the part of the government," Mr. Nimsick said.

"Not so," interrupted Premier Bennett. "The people can register all the time."

"That is all very well for city dwellers," answered Mr. Nimsick. "In some outlying areas they have to travel great distances to register."

"I say our system of registration is rotten."

Mr. Nimsick said the premier during his election campaign went running around the province opening every new building he could lay hands on.

"And there were plenty of them," the premier replied.

Still on the offensive, Mr. Nimsick declared the premier ignored him when opening the new courthouse at Cranbrook, although he had been campaigning for this courthouse for years.

"You were on the platform," retorted Mr. Bennett.

"Yes, but I wasn't on the program," Mr. Nimsick said amid laughter.

Free Food Stall Says Need Great But Gifts Slow

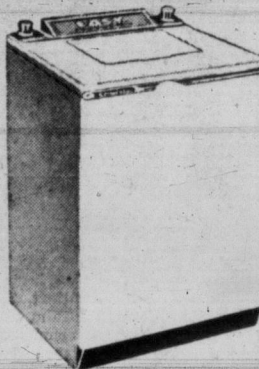

An appeal for donations of canned goods, fruits and vegetables for the Surplus Food Stall at city market Saturday was made today by co-ordinator Mrs. E. E. Harper.

"Donations have just been trickling in," she said. "We need a great many more if we are to help needy and unemployed people."

Food stall donations may be left at Victoria Meat Market, corner of Johnson and Broad; McMoran's Sea View, Cordova Bay; Graham's Grocery, Pat Bay Highway near Elk Lake and McNutt's Grocery on Wilkinson Road.

Donors may call Mrs. Harper at 3-9874 if they wish their donations picked up.

Tax Exemption Asked for Persons Getting Aid on Means Test Basis

If the B.C. government has the money it claims to have, it should give complete tax exemption to persons receiving assistance under a means test, Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) told the legislature Wednesday. Mr. Nimsick referred particularly to blind persons, social assistance cases, pensioners and others "expected to live on an allowance far below what is accepted as a decent standard of living."

Aid From Ottawa Asked for Farms By Socred MLA

The B.C. government should press Ottawa for financial aid in river control and irrigation projects, Francis Richter (SC-Similkameen) told the legislature Wednesday.

He urged a comprehensive federal survey of flood control on the Similkameen River.

Mr. Richter said many of the 200 agricultural districts in B.C. are in poor condition.

He asked the B.C. government to urge Ottawa to extend the Prairie Farmers' Rehabilitation Act to B.C. in order to remedy the situation.

FAST RELIEF FOR ACHING MUSCLES

Mr. Nimsick also protested the tax on fuel, oil, gas and electricity.

"Many people living on allowances heat their homes by these means and I feel the tax is discriminatory in that there is no such tax on other fuels."

Six Skiers Killed

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Six men were killed when a 300-foot-wide avalanche swept over a group of holiday skiers at Silver Falls, North Sweden, Wednesday. It was Sweden's worst avalanche disaster in 10 years.

ARAGON NO FIGHT FIXER; DIDN'T WANT DICK HURT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Third-ranking welterweight Art Aragon denied again from the witness stand Wednesday that he ever offered Dick Goldstein $500 to throw a fight in Texas.

But under questioning by his attorney and manager, Paul Caruso, Aragon said he did tell Goldstein before a scheduled fight in San Antonio to "go down and stay down."

"I frequently tell my opponents that," Aragon said. "I told Goldstein under no circumstances should he try to be a hero."

"I do not like to hurt fighters. I told Goldstein that many times."

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

WRITTEN, PHONED AND STOLEN

POSTMARK, WEMBLEY—This was from Curly Leachman, who has come a long way since the days when he was a lanky, crew-cut kid playing junior hockey in Victoria. Curly now is a lanky, crew-cut young man playing hockey for Wembley Lions in the English professional league.

And you talk about busy... Curly was saying that the Lions had played 50 games up to Christmas, drawing from 8,000-12,000 wildly enthusiastic fans per game.

That wasn't enough so the Lions hopped over the continent and embarked on a barn-storming tour that would represent the dream of a lifetime for the average tourist.

In five weeks, the Lions played 20 games in the Scandinavian countries and were undefeated.

They hit cities like Karlstad, Grums, Umea, Lulea (only 20 miles from the Arctic Circle), Skelleftea, Sundsvall, Boltnas and Gavle.

The English club had lopsided wins like the 16-5 whumping of Bollnas, and they had squeakers like the 6-5 win over Stockholm.

Curly impressed the Europeans enough that he received the offer of a coaching job in Sweden.

POSTMARK, MELVILLE—This one was from Don Hamilton, the kid who wants to be a Cougar and who is getting himself ready by finishing out his junior hockey career with the Melville Millionaires.

Don just wanted a chance to say hello to all his friends in Victoria and to report that the Millionaires, a dismal last-place last season, are currently battling with Humboldt for a playoff berth.

Don may or may not know it but he came under the scrutiny of Boston Bruins scout Harold Cotton recently, Cotton travelling to Humboldt to check on Don and his room-mate, Gordy Matheson, the young defenceman who had a tryout with the Cougars at the start of this season.

POSTMARK, SEATTLE—WHL president Al Leader's weekly news bulletin showed still another reason why the Seattle Americans are in first place in the coast division. Always ready to snap up an opportunity, the Ameriks have scored 35 goals while having the man-advantage this season. Next best at converting on power plays are our Victoria Cougars, with 29 goals scored with an edge in manpower.

POSTMARK, NANAIMO—From Harry Wipper, coach of the Nanaimo Timbermen, came a word of thanks to the Victoria Cougars for their part in boosting the Tommy White Fund. Said Harry, "I feel the people in Victoria should know and be proud of their Victoria Hockey Club. To Colin Kilburn and his players go a very special word of thanks. Their sincere wish to help those in need will certainly make this drive a success."

And, still the lacrosse man to the core, Harry added the post-script, "Let's keep the Mann Cup in the West."

THE PARTY LINE—It was the ladies' day on the telephone, the first being a native of Brandon and being in a rather steaming state at our remarks about the Brandon hockey situation.

"You," she said, "talk about the 20,000 Brandon citizens not supporting their hockey team. And you mention that the Brandon Arena is a cold place. But there are a lot more than 20,000 people living in Victoria and they don't support their hockey team here either. As for arenas, I never miss a game here and I am a lot colder at Memorial Arena than I ever was in the Brandon rink."

The second lady caller felt it was high time that someone put on a special night for Marcel Pelletier, in recognition of the great goal-tending he has given the Cougars.

And we felt that both ladies made a lot of good sense in their calls.

WRITTEN WITH SCISSORS—The Edmonton Journal's highly hilarious account of last week's Flyer-New Westminster game was a minor earthquake. The story described Royal coach Hal Laycoe becoming so incensed at a referee's decision that he grabbed a bundle of 14 sticks and tossed them on the ice. When the referee, who did not see the stick-throwing, asked Laycoe how the sticks got on the ice, Hal blithely explained that fans had thrown them there.

SEATTLE SMOOTHIE MILES AHEAD

Guyle Gets Fitting For Scoring Crown

About the only question remaining in the Western Hockey League scoring race is how many new records Guyle Fielder will set.

The slim Seattle centre is so far ahead of the pack that it is almost certain he will become the first player to win two WHL scoring crowns. Fielder, winner of the 1953-54 season is already two points ahead of his championship total of that season and holds a 23-point lead over last season's scoring king, Phil Maloney of Vancouver.

With 18 games remaining, Fielder has a total of 90 points and needs only another 21 to crack the all-time league record of 110 points set by Bronco Horvath in the 1954-55 season.

Almost certain to fall to the Seattle smoothie is the league mark of 67 assists, established by Tacoma's Mel Read in the 1949-50 campaign. Fielder collected one assist Wednesday night and is now only three away from Read's record.

One point behind Maloney with 66 points is Ed Dorohoy of Seattle who grabbed the scoring crown while with Victoria in the 1950-51 season. Dorohoy in turn holds a slim two-point margin over veteran Sid Finney of Calgary, who leads in goals scored with 35 but is well away from Doug Adam's record of 53.

	G	A	Pts

PRO GRID WORLD SERIES IN SIGHT?

Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, agrees that a "world series" between U.S. and Canadian champions is a possibility for the future. Problems of NFL and Canadian leagues, once on verge of open warfare, were discussed amicably as Bell met informally with Ralph Cooper, president of the Canadian pro grid council. (AP wirephoto)

Grid Hatchet Buried; World Series Possible

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The National Football League and the Canadian Professional Football Council, once at each other's throats, met Wednesday in an atmosphere so peaceful future games between the league teams and a possible meeting of their league champions were discussed.

Bert Bell, NFL commissioner, and Ralph Cooper, council president, met informally to review problems confronting both leagues, including claims to player rights which once set the leagues hussling into the courts.

Both agreed there were "no major differences, nothing which can't be ironed out," facing the two pro circuits.

Both leagues, proud of fat financial seasons—the NFL had its fifth straight record year and seven of the nine Canadian teams finished in the black—looked ahead of future games at the pre-season level.

"The last inter-league meeting was a game between the New York Giants and Ottawa in 1952," Cooper said, "but there's a good chance of the teams playing more and more games against each other in the future."

Bell nodded assent. Similarly, there was agreement that games between the league champions, a world series meeting—could be a fact in the future.

WOULD NEED CHANGES

"If there weren't enough rule changes, that might be possible," Cooper said. "Just now we'd have the advantage because 12 of our players are American, and would be much more familiar with the American rules than the Canadian rules. The Ottawa-New York game was played with one set of rules one half, the other rules in the other half."

"And," he continued, "we like our rules, 10 yards in three downs, among others. The ball changes hands more often." Canada's preference for its rules killed off any chance of a franchise in Buffalo, N.Y., at this time, Cooper indicated.

Cooper said the Canadian player selection method—a "draft" of Canadian college players and a "negotiating list" for American players—was patterned after the NFL draft. "We've been aided by Bell a lot, and our policies have been guided by him quite a bit by our chatting together," Cooper said.

It was pointed out Bell gets a $40,000 salary and just was voted a $10,000 bonus by the NFL. Cooper gets no salary. "We've rubbed shoulders quite a bit in five years," Cooper said with a smile. "I now get expenses. But maybe enough hasn't rubbed off yet."

BAYS TAKE NEW TITLE; JUST CALL THEM TUGMEN

For the first time in 18 years, the Foul Bay lacrosse team will have a nickname.

The defending Vancouver Island senior B boxla champions will be known as Foul Bay Tugmen this season, as they will be sponsored by Island Tug & Barge Co.

As former coach Alex Macdonald has applied for a refereeing job in the Intercity Lacrosse League, the Tugmen this year will be coached by player Jack Reid and will be managed by Tom Halbert, an original member of the pre-war Foul Bay teams.

Eight Teams Enter Province Cup Chase

Cup competition will continue to hold the spotlight in Victoria and District Football League action this weekend.

Gorge Hotel, defeated in last Saturday's Jackson Cup final, and Butler Brothers, will usher in the opening round of Province Cup play for Lower Vancouver Island teams when they tangle at Royal Athletic Park, Saturday afternoon.

All eight clubs in the Victoria Province Cup and one match will be scheduled each Saturday until a Lower Island winner is decided. That team will meet the Up-Island champion, with the winner advancing against the top Mainland clubs. Officials of the district league, hoping to start making up ground lost through weather-caused postponements in their schedule, have carded three league matches for Sunday.

Tillamums are slated to meet Heaneys at Heywood Avenue, Canadian Scottish will clash with Brodie's Bakery at Central Park, and Punjab United takes on Esquimalt at Beacon Hill Park. All matches start at 2 o'clock.

First-round Province Cup draw follows:

Feb. 16—Butler Brothers vs. Gorge Hotel.

Feb. 23—Heaneys vs. Esquimalt.

March 2—Canadian Scottish vs. Brodie's Bakery.

First United Leads Bantam Hoop Series

Final game of the series will be played at Lake Cowichan High School Friday night.

Robin Barnes topped First United scorers with 14 points while MacCaskell lead the Blues with 11 points.

Scorers:

First United—Saddler, Taylor, 12.

Mason, Morrison, 2, Mahon, 4, South.

Fiddler, Barnes, 14, Chambers, MacDonald, 2, Total 37.

Ray Read Script; Played Hero Role

Americans, Royals in Close Wins

It always happens, just like a Hollywood script. Every time a team cuts lose a player, said player comes back like a bad cheque.

Ray Kinasevich wasn't good enough to stay with the Edmonton Flyers this season so Seattle Americans picked him up for a song—a song that turned into the Heart-Break Blues Wednesday night as Kinasevich scored the winning goal in Seattle's 4-3 win over Edmonton.

Kinasevich's winner, scored with less than three minutes left, enabled the Americans to keep their five-point lead over second-place New Westminster Royals, who dropped Brandon Regals, 4-3 at Brandon.

Kinasevich scored his 32nd goal of the season at 17:32 of the third period while teammate Ed Dorohoy, who had set up Seattle's other three goals, was in the penalty box in company with Chuck Holmes and Hugh Coffin of Flyers.

Before that, the teams had played poison tag with the lead.

ROOKIE SCORES

Rookie Bruce Lea gave Seattle a 1-0 lead early in the first period but Flyers rebounded smartly to take the lead on goals by Holmes and Bill McFarland. However, persistent Alex Kuzma again evened the score, converting Dorohoy's pass at 17:51 to leave the clubs deadlocked entering the second period.

Both teams got single tallies in the fracas-filled second period. Art Hart got the first for Seattle at 13:34 for a 60-second lead—again on an assist by Dorohoy.

McCreary tied it up for the Flyers, helped by Cummy Burton and Len Lunde, concluding the scoring but not the hassling for the second period.

The third was quieter but at 15:56, Dorohoy, Holmes and Hugh Coffin tussled their way into the penalty box. While they were there Kinasevich took a pass from Guyle Fielder and scored the winning goal.

Hal Laycoe's Royals snapped Brandon's unbeaten streak at nine straight games, scoring two goals in the space of eight seconds in the second period.

Dick Roberge paced the winners with two goals and an assist while Steve Hrymynak and Gord Fashway added the others. Defenceman Howie Yanosik potted a pair of goals for the Regals and Ray Manson added the other.

Regals came from behind twice before the Royals struck twice in eight seconds, midway through the second period, to sew up the decision. Royals led 2-1 at the end of the first and the clubs each scored twice in the second. The hectic third period was scoreless.

Regals failed to score in the third when Royals were a man short. New Westminster held them off again in the final seconds when Regals pulled Lucein Dechene for an extra forward.

TAKE SECOND PLACE

Bruised Bruins Still a Threat

By The Canadian Press

Undaunted by nervous tension, mysterious blood diseases and battered players, Boston Bruins are back in second place in the National Hockey League.

The Bruins' return wasn't dramatic and it may not last long but their performances of late make it almost certain the Stanley Cup will be a bitter three-way fight between them, Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

A 2-2 draw with Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night put Bruins into a second-place tie with Canadiens. It left Toronto in fifth place, one point back of New York Rangers and the last playoff spot.

It was Toronto's fourth tie in a row at home, and its ninth game without a win, but a near-capacity crowd of 12,807 fans turned out.

ATTRACTED BY SIMMONS

A good many of them were probably there for the Toronto debut of Don Simmons, whose spectacular work in the nets since Terry Sawchuk departed, a victim of nerves and infectious mononucleosis, has helped Boston to win or tie eight of its last 10 games.

The game was never exciting. Don McKenney scored early in the first to give Boston a 1-0 lead, Tim Horton tied it for Toronto at the 15-minute mark, Vic Stasiuk put the Bruins ahead just before the period ended and after George Armstrong's tying marker midway through the second period, the scoring was over.

LEAFS ACTIVE TONIGHT

Tonight, Toronto is in Montreal and the Canadiens can go ahead of Boston again with a win, something they haven't had in their last five games. With this in mind Canadiens have called up Charlie Hodge, another Rochester player, as possible replacement for goalie Jacques Plante.

Club officials emphasize Hodge is only a precaution, and they don't blame Plante for any of the team's bad showings lately.

In a second game Detroit is host to New York Rangers, who have looked good in their last few starts and are trying desperately to hang on to fourth place.

ONTARIO SENIOR: Belleville 4, Pembroke 2. Kitchener 4, Owen Sound 1. QUEBEC LEAGUE: Quebec 2, Trois-Rivieres 4.

Bray Recalls 'Good Old Days'

By DOUG PEDEN

One of the traditional pastimes of retired athletes is that of expounding the theory that players of the newest generation couldn't hold their own in the "old days."

When we were chasing rugby balls around some years ago, we thought we were pretty good after collecting a few cups. But, to the rugby gladiators of the Boss Johnson-Cotton Brynjolfson era, we were undoubtedly a bunch of softies.

Some got an imagined revenge when the youngsters shunted us to the sidelines. "Rugby players," confided the new generation of old-timers, "aren't as good as they used to be."

Such statements are usually good for an argument, especially since sports records measureable with a stopwatch or tape measure continue to tumble year after year. And Doug Bray is one fellow who will expend a few words in defence of the current rugby crop.

However, Doug, who absorbed a large amount of rugby knowledge in the 10 years he played for Victoria's representative sides, still hedged a little as he talked about the Crimson Tide's chances in the forthcoming McKechnie Cup series.

"Today's players," said Doug, who is coaching the Victoria squad for the third year, "have as much ability as those of other years, but they have too many other interests. Many of them don't seem to have the same conditioning or driving will to win."

If the Victoria team can reach top condition and absorb enough winning spirit before the annual series opens against University of British Columbia at Macdonald Park Feb. 23, Bray thinks the Tide has a good chance of winning the McKechnie Cup. Vancouver is the third club in the round-robin series.

Vancouver, with its ever-dangerous wingers, George Pull and John Newton, ready for action and a few former Old Country stars added to its hard core of veterans, is currently favored to take the cup.

Bray, who has sent the Tide through a couple of strenuous workouts this week and plans three practice sessions next week, expects to name his lineup Tuesday.

Defensive play as well as attacking ability will count greatly in team selections although Bray expects to have an offensively-minded club with a strong passing attack.

"This should be the best team in five years," he says, "we are strong down the middle without weak spots, as we have had in other years, at any position."

Tide players, expected to come from James Bay, Oak Bay Wanderers and Victoria College teams, will all have some competitive action this Saturday.

Wanderers and the Bays meet at Macdonald Park Saturday at 2:30 in the opening game of a best-of-three series for the Barnard Cup, emblem of the city senior rugby crown. College opens the second-division playoffs against University School at Carnarvon Park at the same time. Other teams in the second-division round-robin series are Shawnigan Lake and Oak Bay Wanderers.

Rugby, a lonely sport in Victoria the past few years, is expected to get a couple of shots in the arm from a visit by England's famed Barbarians this May and an appearance by an Australian team in 1958.

Bob Spray, president of the B.C. Rugby Union was in Victoria today for a noon meeting with city officials to iron out details of the B.C. phase of the Barbarians' tour.

The British club, which will play six games in Canada, will appear three times in British Columbia, meeting a provincial all-star squad at Macdonald Park, May 8.

CHIEFS WIN, TOO

Flyers Snatch Back Interior Puck Lead

By The Canadian Press
Spokane Flyers have again taken over the top spot in the Western International Hockey League that they held most of the season.

With an 8-1 victory over the slumping Nelson Maple Leafs Wednesday night, the Flyers asserted themselves enough for a two-point margin in the league standings over second-place Trail Smoke Eaters.

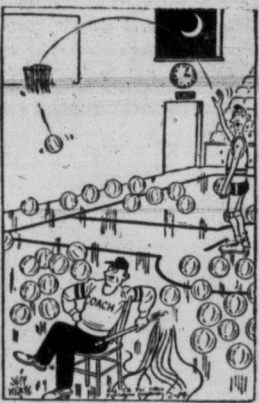

In the sole Okanagan Senior and a match penalty.

League game, Kamloops Chiefs handed the OSHL-Champion Vernon Canadians a taste of their own medicine. Defeated 10-0 by the Canadians Tuesday night, the Chiefs turned around and thumped Vernon 6-3.

Referee Blair Peters threw 75 minutes in penalties into the game, most of them in the third period.

There were 14 minor penalties, three majors, three misconducts, one game misconduct in the sole Okanagan Senior and a match penalty.

TIME OUT! BY JEFF KEATE

Royals Dampen Capital Hopes

Royals ruined Capitals' last hopes of finishing in a tie for first place in the bantam division of the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association when they whipped the runner-up club, 5-1, at Memorial Arena Wednesday.

Sensors, who were upset by the last-place Maroons, 6-5, Tuesday, completed the league schedule two points in front of Capitals.

Sensors and Maroons will meet in one of the best-of-three semifinals later this month, while Royals and Capitals tangle in a similar series.

Bantam all-stars will work out at 7 a.m. next Tuesday in preparation for the Island playoffs.

Royals — Dick Mann 2, Bill Smith, Dick Wiggins, Ray Beech, Total-5.
Capitals — Mike Woodley.

Brown Still Wears Crown With Smith's Dreary Help

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—If Joe Brown really wants to be a "fighting champion," the woods are full of light-weights yapping at his heels.

One contender, Wallace Bug Smith, was scratched permanently from the 135-pound sweepstakes after Wednesday night's dreary effort against Brown in a Miami Beach Auditorium rematch. Completely out-classed by his nimble opponent with the paint brush left, the sluggish ex-champ was sliced up and stopped an 11th round technical knockout victim.

Things got so tough for Smith that his handler, Adolph Ritacco, begged Dr. Alexander Robbins to stop it. The doctor obliged by halting operations between the 10th and 11th. Under Miami Beach rules, it went as an 11th round TKO.

Kenny Lane, the southpaw from Muskegon, Mich., with the red hot winning streak, probably will meet Brown in a spring match.

It is doubtful if Brown, a 30-year-old fancy dancer from New Orleans who weighed 134½, ever will have any easier defence. Smith, who lost the championship to Brown on a split decision Aug. 24 when Brown broke his right hand, never had a chance.

Smith missed often, lacked fire and fought sluggishly. He claimed the ordeal of making the weight (he scaled 134) weakened him too much. From now on, after his left eye has healed, he'll be a welter. The 4,129 fans booed and clapped hands in rhythm at the lack of action.

New Trustee Election Plan Due for Sooke

LANGFORD — Trustees of Sooke School District 62 took the initial step this week toward having trustees elected by ballot in heavily-populated areas rather than through representatives' meetings.

It is proposed that in Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, and Happy Valley four trustees will be elected at large. The area is served at present by four trustees chosen under the old system.

A committee consisting of F. A. McLellan, chief education officer; A. J. Duggan, works superintendent; and Trustees R. J. Weir, Mrs. Isabelle Reader and Aubrey Hull will report to the board on boundaries of the area concerned.

Under the old system trustees are elected by a board of representatives, members of which are elected annually on a school population basis by ratepayers' meetings in designated attendance areas. The system will be retained in the rural portion of the district.

(A) "ANASTASIA" (Royal)
In 20th Century-Fox's "Anastasia" theatregoers are likely to have a glimpse of two persons who, if they don't win Academy awards as best actor and actress of 1956, should certainly wind up as serious threats.
One, of course, is Yul Brynner, the bare-headed, bare-footed fabulous king in 1956's best musical, "The King and I." The other is Ingrid Bergman, voted recently by New York critics as "best actress of 1956" for her title role in "Anastasia."

(B) "MISSING WRITER'S BODY FOUND IN CREEK"
The nude body of missing magazine writer George Sessions Perry was found in a small stream Wednesday.

(C) "ANASTASIA" (Royal)
Colorful in spots but is spoiled generally by the inconsistent tight-and-loose handling of Director Anatole Litvak. Only Bergman, Brynner and, especially, Helen Hayes, who plays the Dowager-empress, supply warmth and life enough to make patrons care what happens to the remnants of a wasted age.

(D) "MISSING WRITER'S BODY FOUND IN CREEK"
The 46-year-old Perry, a long-time arthritis sufferer had been missing from his home here since December 13.

(E) "ANASTASIA" (Royal)
Perry gained fame through his "Cities of America" series in The Saturday Evening Post.

'BABEL OF SOUND'

Better Language Needed—Massey

SACKVILLE, N.B. (BUP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey made a plea Wednesday for clearer, simpler and fresher writing and speaking.

He was delivering the Josiah Wood lecture at Mount Allison University, one of the continent's most noted seats of learning. Mr. Massey has had an international reputation as a scholar and a master in the use of words, spoken and written.

Action in today's complex world waits in communication, through speech or writing, he said. The trouble is, he added, the communication "too often emerges not as a clear trumpet call but as a babel of uncertain sounds."

More people are writing today than ever before, he said. The writers he spoke of included only the creative artist in words, but the scores of thousands in government, business, industry, journalism, radio, television and elsewhere whose work is the writing of reports of one kind or another.

"Our language will be in peril until we can train the craftsmen who... fix their hearts and minds on the good writing that is rooted in clarity, in honesty, in simplicity," Mr. Massey said. "The writer of prose must never forget the essence of poetry, an honesty of mind which compels spontaneity."

"In this day, every kind of slovenly language finds its defender. Those who strive to correct language today find themselves reviled at once by the 'expert' and by the self-appointed spokesman for the multitude."

"For all their talking, bad language is still bad, and the perverse use of bad language is a crime against humanity," To often, Mr. Massey said, bad language is bad because it takes three pages to say what could be said in one "and so wastes the time and wears the spirits of the reader." Again, he added, bad language is so because "it is ugly (with) neither shape nor form, harmony nor rhythm."

Moreover, he went on, it's bad because it is obscure. After sorting out all the clauses, phrases and connecting words "we are still left wondering exactly what the writer means."

VARIETIES NEEDED
"Today we are treating our language as the Victorians treated their building materials," he Governor-General said. "At they needed more buildings of many different kinds for many different people, so we need more language of different sorts, for different purposes."

Like the Victorian builders we have too much to do, we have to do it too quickly, and we have too much to do it with. In the urgency of our task we can forget to be cautious and humble.

"We can encumber our ground with a vast number of linguistic absurdities."

Mr. Massey said he has no patience with the dealer in jargon.

Obscurity in speech and writing, he said, is often purely conventional. He cited the doctor who, when asked the meaning of "bilateral, periorbital haematomas and left subconjunctival haemorrhage," translated it as "two lovely black eyes."

There are only two creators of language, Mr. Massey said. One is the "exuberant spontaneity" of the crowd and the other "the conscious creative art of the writer."

"I do not, for a moment, forget the guardian of the treasure, the much-maligned grammarian, the scholar," Mr. Massey said. "It may be true that without the vigor of the multitude, language would become bloodless and feeble."

"It is equally true that without the scholar's anxious, refining criticism, it would be corrupt and unwieldy."

RCAF 'Originals' To Hold Reunion

VANCOUVER (CP)—A reunion of former RCAF officers who received their permanent commissions more than three decades ago will be held here April 1, the Air Force Officers Association said today.

Air Commodore A. H. Hull (retired), one of the original 62 whose appointment to commissions April 1, 1924, marked the birth of the permanent air force, said 42 of them have been invited to the reunion.

Guests expected to attend the anniversary dinner include Defence Minister Campney, Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Clarence Wallace, former lieutenant-governor; and Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver.

Among officers from Victoria to New York who have been invited are: Rear-Admiral H. F. Pullen, flag officer Pacific coast; Brigadier J. W. Bishop, commander B.C. Area; Air Marshal C. Roy Siemon, chief of the air staff; Air Commodore A. D. Ross, commander 5 Air Division, Vancouver; Air Vice-Marshal A. T. N. Cowley, Victoria.

Tactical Air Command band from Edmonton will be in attendance.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Magna Charta— For the People Or Landlords?

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Was the Magna Charta designed for the people or for disagreeable folk like squires and landlords?

That is one of the fine points of history yet to be settled by the legislature.

Herbert Bruch, that grave totem-like figure, seems to side with the popular historians who say the Magna Charta was a kind-hearted gesture by King John and his barons to give the people a slice of their own affairs.

Not so Robert Strachan, provocative leader of the CCF Opposition. Mr. Strachan sees the Magna Charta as a sinister measure designed for the special benefit of "privileged people" and said so in a rapid-fire exchange with Mr. Bruch.

"It all depends what history book you have been reading," he said.

Premier Bennett Has Faith in Magna Charta

Premier Bennett, at least, has faith in Magna Charta. On the night of his big election triumph last September he said:

"This is the greatest victory for the ordinary man since Magna Charta."

No doubt other members of the legislature will have their say on whether the charter was a nice piece of legislation by modern standards, or just another piece of chicanery aimed at keeping the people in their place.

Microwave-like Leo Nimsick, who has great success in needling government members, was on the offensive at Wednesday's sitting. The CCF member for Cranbrook warned new Socred members of the House against the danger of becoming rubber stamps, or puppets that jump when the string is pulled.

"Your own premier," he said, "should stimulate you. He, at least, had the courage to stand up against his own group in the House. Now he is premier. So there is some hope for the rest of us."

Mr. Nimsick has impish humor and uses it to good effect. He said the Liberal government in Ottawa was a whipping boy as far as the Social Credit government in B.C. was concerned.

Mr. Bennett's government blamed Ottawa for everything that went wrong and poor old Ottawa was so far away it couldn't defend itself before the papers went to press.

What's Socred Credit Answer to Inflation?

"You are the fellows who claim to have the answer to everything," he pursued, "but you haven't yet come up with an answer as to what you would do to prevent inflation."

"Nor has the CCF," interjected a government member. "The CCF," answered Mr. Nimsick, "has always claimed that the only way to avoid depression is to have a planned economy that does not bob up and down according to the state of the market."

After being interrupted a few times, Mr. Nimsick rebuked the government for lack of courtesy. Every member of the House was entitled to a respectful hearing, he claimed, and should not be made fun of by a government with a swollen ego.

W. J. Asselstine, Social Credit member for the far northern riding of Atlin, received a full share of desk-thumping from the government benches on his return to the legislature after 12 years.

Up to 1945 he was minister of mines in the Liberal and Coalition governments. Now, in his own words, he is a Social Creditor because he believes Social Credit is doing something for the province—and particularly his own end of the province.

Mr. Asselstine recalled how the warm-hearted people of Atlin ("the most kindly, hospitable folk in the world") had entrusted him with their affairs back in the dark depression days of 1933. And today, despite his change of allegiance, they still trusted him.

In nostalgic mood, Mr. Asselstine told of excursions to the jungles of South America and said: "There was never a sunset when I did not long to be back in northern British Columbia."

Uphill Exempted From 'No Speech' Rule

When MLAs are entertained by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross at Government House the normal rule is "no speeches."

An exception was made in the case of Tom Uphill, lively 82-year-old member for Fernie, who is just beginning his 37th year in the legislature. Tom's speech, according to fellow MLAs, was a hilarious success. He claimed to be the shyest member of the legislature and said his dear old mother in England had testified to his shyness.

"My mother said I took after my father," Tom said. "And she added, 'If your father hadn't been so shy, you would be two years and two months older than you are now."

'No Speech' Rule

Northern Hydro Power Vital To Development Says Asselstine

There is no place in the world today where an excess of cheap hydro-electric power is available near tidewater, W. J. Asselstine, former minister of mines in the B.C. Liberal government, and now Socred

MLA for Atlin, told the legislature Wednesday. "If this government were to announce today that 400,000 horsepower would be available in the vicinity of Stewart in five years' time, we could assume that every kilowatt would be contracted for on delivery."

St. Mark's Plan To Purchase New Rectory

Plans of St. Mark's Church this year will include purchase of a new rectory and improvements to the church hall.

Parishioners adopted both resolutions at a recent annual meeting. Canon Robert Willis named Alfred Cullen rector's warden, and H. P. Fisher was elected people's warden.

Members of the church committee are Arthur Virgin, Harold Saich, Richard Price, L. C. Webb, A. R. Willis, R. L. Flint, J. D. Marshall, S. A. Holman, Miss D. B. George, Mrs. C. D. George, G. S. Stephenson, Harry Sharpin and Mrs. E. C. Head. Treasurer is R. A. Head.

Delegates to synod are A. W. Weston, Mr. Marshall, H. P. Fisher and Mr. Stephenson.

Honorary warden is P. E. Gorge.

He said a geological survey carried out in northern B.C. produced estimates that the Atlin-Yukon power development would produce 5,000,000 horsepower, and the Stikine River development about 2,000,000.

Division of part of the River Liard into the Dease Valley and thence into the Stikine would make available an additional 2,000,000.

The Iskut was estimated to produce 500,000 horsepower and the Nass River, now under survey, close to 500,000.

He said the Alcan development would produce 1,500,000 horsepower and support a population of 50,000 people. On the same basis the Stikine, the Iskut and the Nass, with a total output of 3,000,000 horsepower, would support a population of 100,000 people.

Mr. Asselstine pointed out that the Iskut, with 500,000 horsepower, was located within reasonable transmission distance of the Granduc Mine, which would require power for mining and smelting.

There would be at least 400,000 horsepower to be marketed in the vicinity of Stewart.

He said the new Cassiar-Stewart road—major development in the Atlin riding—will actually connect the Yukon with the farthest northern year-round seaport in Canada at Mile 648 on the Alaskan Highway.

This connection would provide the most direct route from southeastern Yukon and the

Evacuation By Car Held Not Too Hard

Evacuation of Greater Victoria by car would be easier than some people anticipate, district Civil Defence co-ordinator Roger Peachey told the CD control board today.

He said after the successful Marilyn Bell swim last August 1,500 cars passed a given point in half an hour, in single lane traffic. He felt 3,000 cars could leave the city in a double lane in the same time, as in the event of evacuation, no traffic would be allowed in.

FORMER LIBERAL MINISTER EXPLAINS SWITCH TO SC

W. J. Asselstine, minister of mines in British Columbia's former Liberal and Coalition governments, told the legislature Wednesday he had switched to the Social Credit movement because he believed in "principles above party."

Back in the House as Socred member for far-northern Atlin, after an absence of 12 years, Mr. Asselstine said: "We live under a democratic system in which every man has the right to change his party as he chooses. I make no apology for joining this great new movement. I followed my conscience and I know I did the right thing."

Mr. Asselstine took issue with P. A. Gibbs (Lib., Oak Bay) who, in the House Monday, spoke of "Liberal renegades."

"There are still good Liberals in this province that I would go bear-hunting with any day," said Mr. Asselstine. "But there are also the other type, who are saboteurs. I will not say more."

benefit of any one or two mining operations.

"It is very probable that two major developments already known, and one in production, will use the road. But many more properties will be helped to earlier production by its construction."

"The Granduc Mine, located about 40 miles north of Stewart, has already developed several million tons of commercial copper ore and will probably be assisted in expansion and earlier production by construction of this road."

MINERALS FOUND The road would pass through 400 miles of favorable geological structure, where mineral discoveries have already been made, and would open an area previously considered inaccessible, or beyond the economic limits of mining exploration.

Mr. Asselstine said the road production by construction of was not being built for the CLOSE TO 300 DENTISTS from all parts of B.C. with representatives of the profession from Washington, Oregon and California as well, will meet in Victoria for a three-day convention of the B.C. Dental Association starting May 16. Plans for the meeting, during which numerous clinical sessions are planned, are in the hands of a committee headed by Dr. William Milburn, above, Victoria president of the association.

Firing of Officials Scored as Despicable

The B.C. government acted "despicably" in dismissing its law clerk and former sergeant-at-arms without hearing their side of the case, Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) told the legislature Wednesday.

1-Company Town Policy Criticized By Esquimalt MLA

Government member Herbert Bruch said Wednesday B.C. should avoid having "one-company towns."

He suggested in the legislature that in future industrial developments the government should compel the company to turn over 20 per cent of its generated power.

This power could be distributed by the government or an agency for the use of other enterprises.

The Esquimalt member referred to difficulties of secondary industries becoming established at Kitimat.

He made his remarks after welcoming the announcement in the legislature Tuesday of a multi-million dollar development in northern B.C. by Swedish financial interests.

Supporting earlier protests by CCF leader Robert Strachan, Mr. Nimsick said he did not agree that a statement, made before a legislative committee under oath, by former sergeant-at-arms Edgar Jamieson was sufficient reason for dismissing him.

"It is unfair to put a man under oath and then tell him in effect, 'If you say anything against the government you will be fired.'"

"This is a travesty of justice." (Mr. Jamieson was said to have told the committee he was "out to get" Robert Sommers, then minister of lands and forests.)

Mr. Nimsick added that former law clerk Berkeley Monteith, Victoria lawyer, was given no reason for his dismissal until Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the House he had acted "improperly."

"I suggest it was despicable act to attack this man in the House when the attorney-general knew he could not defend himself before the House."

"At the last session we sat all one night trying to get the government to answer serious charges made against one of its cabinet ministers (Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers), but the government gave us no satisfaction at all."

Mr. Nimsick maintained there should be one set of rules in such circumstances—not rules that could be changed to "suit the government's convenience."

MLA Protests 'Give Away' Of Resources

Leo Nimsick, CCF member for Cranbrook, warned the British Columbia government Wednesday against giving away too much of the province's natural resources.

He was referring to the government's plans for development of a multi-million dollar industrial empire in northern British Columbia financed by Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

"I hope the government will consider the welfare of the people in this matter," Mr. Nimsick said. "It is not good policy to break through the last frontier of our great natural storehouse unless it will be to the benefit of the people of this province."

Mr. Nimsick said he was reminded of a similar agreement made many years ago regarding Kitimat.

"No, sir," interrupted Premier Bennett. "There is no comparison. There will be no concessions this time."

Mr. Nimsick said it appeared the government was prepared to give away more than it had the right to give.

"I have already said that we have made no commitments so far as the natural wealth of the province is concerned," the Premier replied.

The Cranbrook member, recalling the early pioneers of British Columbia, said:

"I sometimes wonder if we are getting to the last frontier and that before long we shall have to turn to books to read of the great natural wealth we once possessed."

Court to Rule On Milk Act

C. Gov't Takes Action to Test Validity of Law Approved Last Session

The new B.C. Milk Act, approved at the last session of the legislature, will be tested in the courts "as soon as cases can be prepared."

Agriculture Minister Ralph Etwynd made this statement today, following a cabinet decision last week to refer the act to the Court of Appeal.

Mr. Etwynd said the action is being taken to "determine the constitution and validity of the Milk Act and to answer questions that have arisen in the minds of the people."

T. G. Norris, counsel for the hearings conducted by Mr. Justice J.V. Cline in 1955, has been retained to represent the government in the court test.

SPEECHLESS WOMEN ROBBED

SUDBURY (CP) — The all-male staff of the downtown men's Wear store was left temporarily speechless Wednesday when two men brazenly walked out of the store with their arms full of dresses taken off the rack. By the time two sales clerks gave chase it was too late. Police picked up one suspect but failed to locate the dresses.

ESQUIMALT GETS EQUAL TREATMENT

'Politics', Snaps Warren On Socred MLA's Charge

A denial that Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau discriminates against Esquimalt auto courts was made Wednesday night by bureau director George I. Warren.

His statement followed a speech in the legislature by Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch. Mr. Bruch said the present bureau "discriminated" against Esquimalt. It is not open at night when most tourists arrive, he said.

"Politics," answered Mr. Warren.

"What does Esquimalt contribute to the bureau?" (Victoria gave $32,550 last year and has been asked for $35,000 in 1957.)

VISITORS' CHOICE

"We refer tourists to what they want. We do not discriminate at all."

Mr. Warren added that lists are provided tourists showing all available auto court or guest house accommodation, and the choice is left to the visitor.

Mr. Bruch said the government should establish a provincial bureau for tourists and suggest a site at the corner of Belleville and Government.

RCMP should be relieved of some of their non-police duties in unorganized territories, such as collection of trade and animal licences.

Police should concentrate on more important tasks and licences should be turned over to another agency for collection.

Mr. Bruch said he was "disappointed" that RCMP were spending time picking up people carrying more than 300 pounds of driftwood in the trunks of their cars in Victoria's outlying districts.

Mr. Warren says 75,000 people used the present facilities last year.

Elsewhere in his speech, Mr. Bruch called for development of the Gorge reclamation plan. "Such historic spots should be given special attention," Mr. Bruch said.

Passing on Right Charge Dismissed

A charge of passing on the right Dobbie, 1224 Reynolds, who police said pulled out from a line of stationary cars on Government at Yates and passed them through the intersection to proceed with the green light north on Government. A traffic by-law referred to by the court permits such action.

Charge was laid against Lloyd

Last year's traffic record on B.C. highways was "appalling and police should be free to spend more time curbing serious offences."

The B.C. Animals Act should be amended to prevent animals running loose in unorganized territories.

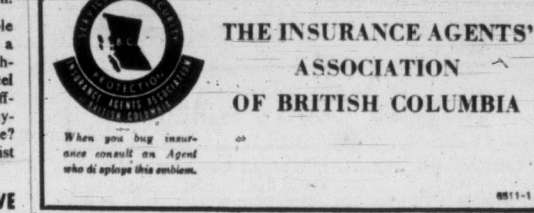

The problem was especially bad in Esquimalt riding, Mr. Bruch said, and there were no facilities to control stray animals. Special "pound-districts" should be created in unorganized territories.

Nanaimo Crash Kills Salesman

Second Driver Undergoing Brain Operation in City

A two-car collision just before midnight on the Island Highway, three miles north of Nanaimo, killed a Nanaimo man and seriously injured another.

Dead is G. Sydney Romeril, 61 Howard Avenue, salesman for Ryan Co. Ltd., who was driving a panel truck.

In Royal Jubilee Hospital here is 19-year-old Graham Turner, driver of the second vehicle involved in the crash. He was brought to Victoria by ambulance from Nanaimo, and at press time was still undergoing brain surgery.

James Attabery of Port Alberni, a passenger in the Turner automobile, is in Nanaimo General Hospital undergoing treatment for minor concussion and shock.

The accident occurred just one-half mile east of Wellington station on the new highway outlet northward from Nanaimo.

Both vehicles were demolished. An inquest has been scheduled for Friday.

Zoo Transfer Support Ended By City Group

Protests Mounting, Beebe Tells Council

The proposed zoo in Thetis Lake, Park today lost the support of a group which had indicated earlier it would form a zoological society to assist in the project.

Frank L. Beebe, former curator of the Stanley Park zoo at Vancouver, wrote to city council cancelling "any support stated or implied" regarding transfer here of the Port Alberni zoo of Paul Hertel.

Mr. Beebe gave as a reason for his action the fact his group had been given no opportunity by council to state conditions under which it was prepared to lend support.

He wrote: "Personally, I am opposed to the idea of the showing of foreign animals in little cages to the public for an admission charge."

"I wish to add my personal protest to the list of those that I feel sure are already accumulating."

The city has received several letters protesting the zoo transfer advocated by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Ald. Edgelow had hinted earlier that the $10,000 required by Mr. Hertel to move his zoo here might be put up by such a group as the proposed zoological society.

Negligence Case At Nanaimo Court

NANAIMO — Trial of Irvin Emil Waite, 25, of New Westminster, on a charge of criminal negligence, opened in Assize Court here today before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson.

Waite, a foreman for Fraser River Pile Driving Co., was the driver of a car that crashed into a bridge at Nile Creek, north of Qualicum Beach. James Jorgenson, about 55, died in the crash, which smashed the car to pieces.

CITY PAYS BET

The city is presenting the hat as well as a smaller copper top, to the Prairie city in payment of a bet over which city would reach its community chest target last fall.

Mr. Fisher, a kindly man, as well as a lawyer, broadcaster, writer, scholar and traveller, received an egg-shaped badge accrediting him as a special ambassador from Victoria.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, acting mayor, presented Mr. Fisher with a tape to "measure the height of the snow in the prairie city and a blue and white scarf to wear on his mission. With the "gifts" went a warning from Acting Mayor Dowell of the dangers of traveling to the snow-covered prairies.

He received his award from the present principal of South Park, Wilfred Orchard. (Times photo).

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—From where did our continent get celery, much prized article of food? Mrs. L.D.T.

A.—The Encyclopedia Britannica in an article says: "Celery (Apium graveolens, a biennial plant, Fam. Umbelliferae which in its wild state occurs in England by the sides of ditches and in marshy places, especially near the sea, producing a furrowed stalk and compound leaves with wedge-shaped leaflets, the whole plant having a coarse rank taste and a peculiar smell. It is also widely distributed in the north temperate region of the Old World. By improvement through breeding and selection and blanching the stalks lose their acrid qualities and assume the sweetish aromatic taste peculiar to celery as a salad plant. A large number of varieties are cultivated by gardeners, which are ranged under three classes: green, white and red, the improved green varieties being generally the best flavored and crisp and tender."

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Ontario, Jonquiere, Stettler on training cruise, return May 3. Crescent, Athabaskan, Cayuga on exercises in California waters, return March 7. New Glasgow on exercise, returns 3:30 p.m. Friday.

LOCAL SHIPYARDS TURN TO INDUSTRIAL PROJECTS

Huge new $100,000 fabrication shed for industrial equipment nearing completion at Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant points up efforts of local shipyards to keep volume of work flowing, employment up, despite fall-off in ship orders.

Similar new building was completed several months ago at Yarrows Ltd. Yards find themselves nearing end of navy new-ship and modernization orders, have difficulty in competing with foreign yards, especially in Japan, for new ships. Work forces, now at all-time peak, are expected to taper off slowly unless large volume of industrial orders can be attained.—(Times photo)

New Fire Hall Proposal Faces Defeat

McEwen, Smith To Upset Vote

Victoria's $325,000 fire hall building by-law will be defeated at city council level, it was indicated at city hall today.

The only hope for a March 9 vote would be the speedy return of Mayor Percy Scurrell from a winter holiday in California.

As the matter stands, first reading of the by-law will be defeated by "no" votes from Aldermen E. D. McEwen and J. Donald Smith.

All other aldermen supported preparation of a by-law when the matter came to council last Friday.

However, the by-law cannot pass without a three-quarter affirmative vote. Seven out of the nine-man council must support the by-law. With the mayor away and Ald. Smith and Ald. McEwen opposing, only six "yes" votes are possible.

Acting mayor, Ald. Arthur Dowell, said he would not request the mayor's return.

SITE PROBLEMS

"There are other technicalities involving the location of a suitable site, which could delay the by-law," he explained.

Although council approved a by-law to spend up to $325,000 of reverted land sales funds for the hall, it did not stipulate what site would be used.

Some aldermen feel the public would not pass the enabling by-law unless it was known where it would be built.

So far, the fire warden's committee of Ald. Austin Curtis has made no recommendation and potential sites are still under study.

Ald. McEwen's opposition was expressed earlier. Ald. Smith was absent from council attending the legislature. His opposition only came to light today.

JOINT SERVICES

"The people of Saanich and Victoria, in the recent elections, passed a referendum favoring continued study of a proposed joint municipal hall and joint operation of certain essential services," he stated.

"Until that plan is settled it would be wrong to spend money for a fire hall. It may be advantageous to include all services in a new joint municipal hall."

He also pointed out the city only has $325,000 already available for new construction projects.

"If we use the money now, the next building (possibly a joint municipal hall) will have to be approved by the people and the money would have to be raised."

QUIT PARTY TWO YEARS AGO

'Commie' Teacher Raised in City

By TONY DICKASON

H. Keith Ralston, 35, Victoria-born, has a history of upsetting legislative members.

Now a Vancouver English teacher, he said "I'm the man they mean" when asked if he was the "well-known Communist" whom MLA Archie Gibbs told the legislature was teaching at a junior high school.

An active Labor Progressive (Communist) party member for years, he said in Vancouver he quit the party two years ago.

Previously, he was Victoria correspondent for the LPP weekly, the Pacific Tribune, and in that position took scathing swipes at legislative functions.

SOUR ASIDES

Sitting beside him in the legislative press gallery, it was easy to overhear his comments on functions on the floor. They ranged from "what a neanderthal type" to "oh, for gosh sakes," all sotto-voice.

At that time he referred to himself as "a black-listed university professor."

He was one of the most brilliant students developed by Victoria schools, educated at Oaklands, Victoria High and Victoria College. He won numerous scholarships, both at school here and at University of British Columbia. After leaving UBC he joined the RCN, and served more than three years as a lieutenant.

MOTHER HERE

His mother, Mrs. G. M. Ralston, lives here at 1256 Acton. "The first thing Keith did when this trouble started was to telephone me," she said today. "He didn't want me to worry."

That was the same position he took when he was here with the Tribune. He said several times, "Mother is sick, I must not do anything to worry her."

He was described by principal of the Templeton Junior High, A. E. Henderson as "a very satisfactory and hard-working staff member."

Said Mr. Ralston of his past

$7,000 Loss By Ice Capades Recorded Here

The city-owned Memorial Arena is expected to net only about $1,300 when all accounts are completed for the five-day Ice Capades ice show here this month.

The show lost a reported $7,000. The arena profit is only equal to the net take from five days of ice skating. Normal rental rates, if attractions had been available, would have brought in at least $500 a night or about $2,500.

Manager Joe Dukowski said the results have been about the same for three years running and he is considering asking the ice show to book for only three days next year.

He feels admissions would remain about the same but expenses would be cut by at least a third.

60-40 SPLIT

Ice Capades come here on a 60-40 gate split basis with the ice show getting the larger share. In 1956, gross gate income was $39,292. After amusement tax is deducted the show received its share, leaving the city $12,993. Expenses to the arena were $11,663, leaving a net income of $1,360.

Mr. Dukowski says ticket sales were about the same this year and it is possible expenses may be greater in view of the special rigging for the Peter Pan flying act.

"The problem facing the arena," said the manager, "is whether it is worthwhile to operate on a slim margin in order to provide Victoria with a big-time ice show."

MONEY LOST?

He said if the arena commission had charged itself a $300 nightly rental, it would appear to have lost money.

But as long as no other attractions were seeking the use of the arena, the income is only slightly less than what might have been received from skating and ice rentals.

TRY A NIP OF SAANICH SIP

'Tis Real Home Brew ---And Legal, Too

It will really be Dr. William Newton's cup of tea!

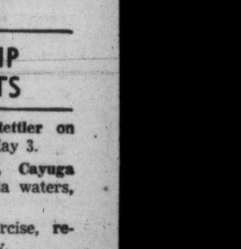

He's growing tea in his garden at Saanichton, and hopes to indulge in the "home-brew" the coming fall.

Dr. Newton, an avid tea imbibor, is director of the Dominion Plant Pathology Laboratory, Saanichton, and brought tea seeds back from Ceylon three years ago where he served as a UNESCO scientist.

The seeds were planted in a greenhouse, and last year the bushes were moved outdoors. Success of the operation raises the question if, perhaps, a variety of tea could be grown in this area.

MONT ROBERTS

I told you and I told you and I TOLD you—don't throw away those old Gundy buttons.

The voters didn't vote for Gundy, but he seems to be elected anyhow.

I'm not surprised that Premier Bennett didn't know anything about Gundersen's job with the Wenner-Gren outfit.

After all, Gundy's a busy man, and can't be expected to take time to tell the premier every little thing he's mixed up in.

So much for friended finance. Now on to greater things.

Such as spoonerized puns. For many a moon, I have been on the hunt for a genuine, brand new, never-before-told-or-published spoonerized pun.

And I think perhaps I have found one—aided and abetted by an oldie forwarded by our ex-associate, Lance Whittaker. First, the oldie: A man owned a beautiful summer home by the sea. The only marring aspect was the continual nuisance—in noise and otherwise—of myriad sea birds.

So the man took to throwing rocks at the birds. This annoyed a bird-loving neighbor, who remonstrated with the rock thrower—only to receive this reply:

"I'll leave no tern unstoned."

And now—if you can stand it—for the newie, inspired by the above:

A pair of sea birds got married and, in the due course of time, the female sea bird laid an egg.

This was a great source of pride to the male sea bird, who looked forward with keen anticipation to being a father.

Thus he was highly alarmed when he returned from a short absence to find the egg gone from the nest, and the lady tern busily scratching together a pile of leaves with her claws.

"What's the matter?" he cried. "Didn't the egg hatch?"

Am I not a father?"

"Of course it did and yes you are," said the female sea bird, continuing to pile up leaves.

"Then what are you doing?" demanded her husband.

"I'm leaving over a new tern," she explained.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Keyed to Household Budgets Are Perky Pottery Pieces

By PENNY SAVER

Little things that are fun to buy as extras for your home or as last-minute gifts are in abundance, especially in one small store I visited recently. There I didn't know which way to look, for pottery, metal and glass pieces in the most appealing shapes and styles popped out from everywhere. Here's a rolling pin planter with a wrought iron back piece. Certainly just the thing to brighten your kitchen or pantry, the cost is keyed to a household budget, at just $1. Hang it on the wall and plant your favorite length of ivy in it.

For knick-knack shelves here are perky threesomes. Little animal families of glazed china are three for $1. You'll see snooty little Pekinese, tiny, delicate chihuahuas, graceful flamingoes, hoppy rabbits and . . . contented cows. There's a little dachshund with six pups and a cat with six kittens for the same price, $1. Menagerie collectors will have fun with these beautifully-shaped animals that look so real you expect them to bark, meow, moo or something.

More china items—I found candle holders the likes of which I've never seen before. They stand about three inches high, and are really little soldiers, saluting. The soldiers are like animated candy sticks, red and white striped. They'll thrill the youngsters in the family, especially at party time. Each holder is 75 cents.

Candles, not for the children's candlesticks, but for your formal table setting for a special occasion, are designed of Oriental carved pure wax. Characters are engraved all over the attractive candles that come in white, gold or green. They really are lovely, and you'll not begrudge the price, $1.65 each. They're imported from the Orient.

"Instead of a mushy valentine each year, why don't you give me a fistful of mushy money?"

Model UN Assembly Planned In Victoria in Early March

Plan for the first United Nations Model Assembly to be held in Victoria on March 1 and 2 was given to members of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club at their meeting Monday evening.

The project is designed to acquaint citizens of Victoria with work of the UN Assembly and to give students and the public an appreciation of work being done by that body. The Victoria BPW Club, sponsors of the assembly, has named Miss Verna Beek as chairman, with J. H. Ford, of United Nations Association, Victoria Branch, the co-chairman.

High school students of Victoria and district will take part in the three sessions which will be held Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday morning in Central Junior High School. Guest speaker at the Friday session will be Dr. N. Scarf. ## Spring Millinery Added Touch At Auxiliary Bridge and Tea

A collection of 30 of spring's most attractive hats was presented in a showing arranged by the T. Eaton Company at the St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary bridge tea and luncheon show, Wednesday afternoon, in the nurses' residence.

Showing featured the newest styles, with a few fine fells. The new look for spring presented bright and dimension without being top-heavy. Many of the hats were in the off-face style. Some were draped and there were turbans and profile effects. In trimmings, flowers, fruit and even bumble bees were featured. Colors were as fresh as a spring garden.

Much applause greeted Mrs. Ina Harford when she appeared wearing a Breton sailor in delicate pink straw. It was wreathed with a garland of grey silk petals and had a perky cerise shaded silk bow at the back. Mrs. Pat Marthdale received acclaim for the French model hat, by Delphine, of Paris, she wore in the new sidelong look being featured in Vogue. It was of navy and white hand-stitched straw with white linen trim. Mrs. Irene Murray was featured wearing the newest and smartest color for spring—violet. This was a softly manipulated felt "rocker" draped and accented with bumble bees as a trim.

The models appeared in a huge Valentine frame. Gloves and accessories were also shown. Mrs. Kay Ellis was the commentator.

More than 40 tables of bridge were in play in the auditorium where the showing of hats was presented. Many other guests came in for tea, served from a head table in the lounge, which was decorated with a low arrangement of white chrysanthemums and red carnations and red candles in silver holders. Presiding at the silver urns were Mrs. Donald Cox, Mrs. Eric Martin, Mrs. Stuart Keate and Mrs. Charles Y. Brown.

The new auxiliary president, Mrs. C. Rose received guests. Convener of the affair was Mrs. A. T. Johnson, assisted by Miss M. King. Tea conveners were Mrs. J. Cochran and Mrs. E. N. Boetche. In charge of a membership table was

On Etiquette

About religious complications of an engaged couple:

My 21-year-old son, who is in the service, has recently given an engagement ring to an 18-year-old girl, whom we like very much and who is quite mature for her age. Because of religious differences, the girl's parents refuse to make any announcement. They even ordered her out of the house, but relented soon after. We feel that some announcement should be made. If it is permissible that I do it, how would I go about it?

Louise

Louise Davis answers:

It wouldn't be correct or proper for you to make any public announcement. If the girl's parents won't do it, there is nothing that you can do. If the girl is wearing her ring, the grapevine will see that the news gets around fast. I'll make a guess that if these young people continue to be serious about marriage, the parents will accept the situation and will fall in line eventually. They relented once and chances are that they will relent again if they realize that the couple mean business. It would be wise not to put any more obstacles in their way to antagonize them further. Defying them now by making any kind of announcement would probably fan the flame. Something tells me that everyone "will live happily ever after!" This is no novel situation. There are many couples with religious differences in their families, who have married happily under similar circumstances.

Many babies seem to like raisins as a dessert. This is an excellent way for baby to get his iron, if he likes them. They can also be sprinkled on cereal, mixed with bananas or eaten out of a box in the park.

AYLMER TREAT OF THE WEEK

Quick... easy... and mighty good!

You know how good Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice is as a breakfast eye-opener or as a meal starter. But do you know there are dozens* of other ways to use it? This Tomato Aspic, for one. Hearty enough to please your men folk, it's glamorous enough to serve when the "girls" come for lunch. Of course, it tastes good because it calls for Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice!

What makes this one juice so tasty? This. Only very special tomatoes, "babied" from the time they're seeds to the time they grow perfect red-ripe, are tenderly squeezed to juice. Then a special recipe is used so the juice stays the same delightful consistency from top to bottom of the can. Always the same. Just chill—serve—and enjoy. Keep several cans of Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice on hand—always.

*More tasty treats with Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice

NIPPY NIGHT SPECIAL. When it's cold outside, be warm inside with hot tomato juice. Just heat Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Serve in mugs. Garnish with popcorn.

Use as part of the liquid in gravies and meat pies. Use as the liquid in making tea biscuits and dumplings.

For spiced Tomato Juice, add your choice of lemon juice, a dash of Tabasco, or Worcestershire, or horseradish, or cayenne pepper.

TOMATO ASPIC
(Makes 8 servings)

3 1/2 cups (1 1/2 twenty-ounce cans) Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice
2 tablespoons gelatine
1 bay leaf
1 to 2 stalks celery (include tops)

1 tablespoon scraped onion
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar

Soften gelatine in 1/2 cup of the cold Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Simmer together remaining tomato juice, bay leaf, celery, onion, sugar and salt, for 10 minutes. Strain. There should be 2 1/2 cups of liquid. Add softened gelatine and remaining ingredients. Stir until gelatine has dissolved. Pour into ring mould. Chill until firm. To serve, unmould and fill centre with a creamy potato salad. Surround mould with cold sliced meat. A most delicious lunch or supper!

Centennial Cookbook Compiled By Women's Institutes to Have Many Old-Time Recipes

Members of women's institutes in British Columbia are busy at the moment delving into their pantries and into the pantries of friends and relatives to find the most delectable recipes in the province for a cookbook they are compiling for B.C.'s centennial year.

It's a province-wide search that includes turning up recipes used back in the days when the first white women came into B.C.

Home economies convenor, Mrs. Clyde White, is in charge of compiling the book, assisted by secretaries of the 16 women's institute districts in the province: Arrow Lakes, Bulkley-Tweedsmuir, Cariboo, Central Interior, Douglas, Fraser Valley, Hopedale, Kootenay East, Kootenay West, Kettle River, Okanagan North and Salmon Arm, Okanagan South and Similkameen, Peace River, Thompson North, Vancouver Island North and Vancouver Island South. Each district is responsible for one section of the book.

Included in the cookbook will be a section on the cooking of wild game with some of the recipes dating back to early years.

Some of the recipes will be worded in the phraseology of the old-time cooks of grand-mother's day, with "a pinch of this and a bit of that."

One precious recipe already accepted for the book urges that the cooking be done in a "quiet oven."

With the thought that there will be many family reunions during British Columbia's centennial year of 1958, with sons and daughters and grandchildren returning to the "old homestead," the convenors have included a section on quantity cooking with many of the recipes used in the days of the big families, big farms, large threshing crews that had to be fed as they worked, and country dances where midnight supper, breakfast and sometimes, mid-day meals were served.

HISTORY INCLUDED

Commencing each section of the cookbook will be a short history of the district from which the recipes have been taken. There will also be stories of the work of women's institutes in British Columbia during the past century.

In these stories will be information as to when the first soil was cultivated in the province; the first garden planted; the first ranches for cattle and sheep started; the first field crops sown. Women's Institute members are also gathering facts about the first agricultural fairs and shows in British Columbia.

There will be stories, too, of the earliest settlers how they arrived and descriptions of their clothes.

Mrs. Stella Gummow, B.C.'s superintendent of women's institutes and co-ordinator of this interesting project, says and landscapes in the 20th century that final plans for the book will be made when the provincial women's institute board meets in Victoria in March.

"We hope to have the book ready for printing by the fall and that it will be presented to the public by the last week in May, 1958 — our centennial year."

Art Gallery Luncheon For Artists

Mr. John Kyle was guest of honor at a luncheon arranged by the women's committee at the Art Gallery last Monday. Introduced by Miss Sara Spencer, curator, Colin Graham paid tribute to John Kyle and to Fred Amess, whose exhibitions are now showing at the gallery. In his address, "Artists in the 20th Century," Mr. Graham went on to show how landscapes have progressed from their symbolic painting in the 16th century until the present time when they are representative of our Canadian art.

John Di Castri thanked the curator and expressed the members' appreciation of Mr. Graham's many services to the gallery.

Count Calories, It's Only Sure Way to Lose Weight

Many women feel that they are well on their way to a slim figure if they leave sugar out of their coffee and skip potatoes and bread.

Actually, unless you drink a lot of coffee, the little sugar you use doesn't make much difference, and a baked potato is splendid food and only has about 90 calories.

The only sure way to lose weight is to count your calories. The manner in which you divide them makes no difference in weight loss, but it does make a great difference in your comfort while losing.

The toast and coffee breakfast is apt to lead to fatigue and inefficiency. We hear more and more about this. Not only does the light breakfast make dieting more difficult, but you miss so many of the splendid health foods which you may not get in sufficient quantities in the other meals.

For instance, the egg is a wonderful food, giving you many essentials for best nutrition for only a few calories. One egg is about 75 calories and it contains vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, protein, calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Another reason that eggs are such fine food is because their protein contains all of the essential amino acids. These are the body's building blocks. Eggs should play a large part in reducing menus. Do not fry them. Bake, poach or boil. Even with a dot of butter added they are low in calories count and high in health value.

We should all have at least five a week. You can eat these at breakfast, in salad at luncheon or as a part of the main meal at night.

Other breakfast foods such as whole grain cereals and citrus fruits and juices also play an important role in nutrition. If you would like to have my leaflet "Vitamin Defence," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 37. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Over $660 Netted From Annual Ball

Mrs. J. D. Young entertained members of the Women's Committee to the Victoria Symphony Society at her home, 2530 Lansdowne Road, recently when a report on the eighth annual symphony ball was read by convenor, Mrs. E. E. Pearlman. More than $660 was raised from the event.

Mrs. L. N. Roberts gave a preliminary report on the Canadian Players' appearance here on March 12 and 13. The committee will sponsor the performances "Othello" and "Man and Superman."

Miss Diane Douglas Weds H. A. Stratford In Recent Ceremony

In a setting of spring flowers, in St. Alban's Church, Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh officiated recently at a ceremony in which Miss Diane Gertrude Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Douglas, 845 Cowper Street, became the bride of Harvey Arthur Stratford, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Stratford of Victoria.

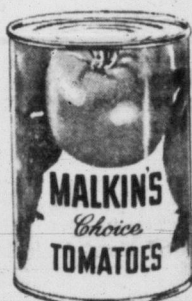

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowning in a full-length dress of white lace and net fashioned with a lace bodice and matching jacket. Her only jewelry was a blue heart-shaped locket with matching earrings. Pink rosebuds and pink carnations in her bridal bouquet were accented with sprays of ivy. Streamers of pink ribbon tied with rosebuds cascaded from her bouquet.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Joan Berry, who chose a ballerina-length gown of pale blue fashioned with lace bodice and jacket. Her bouquet was of deep pink carnations with a spray of ivy.

The groom had Vern Berry as best man, while John Woods and Ron deMontigny ushered guests to pews marked with floral sprays. A reception was held in Loughheed's Banquet Hall, where a three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table. Large baskets of daffodils, fern and iris flanked the table. A Plume proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, the bride wore a suit of imported tweed in a beige and rust tone with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Arm in Splint, Boy, 13, Saves Two Tots From Burning Home

(From The Canadian Press) KIMBERLEY—A 13-year-old boy, his arm in a partial splint, rescued his younger sister and brother from their smoke-filled home when a short circuit caused the radio to catch fire.

Melvin Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Downing, bundled his year-old brother under his arm and carried him out. Then the boy went back into the house and led his sister to safety.

Passers-by controlled the fire and it was put out by firemen after causing considerable damage to one wall and a ceiling.

Faulty Gas Units 'Daring Death' Says BCE Official

VANCOUVER (CP) — A B.C. Electric official says several hundred Vancouver home owners are "daring death" in knowingly using faulty natural gas appliances.

Executive vice-president Dr. H. L. Purdy said three warnings have been given the people, but that they had not acted upon them.

Dr. Purdy, speaking at a B.C. Safety Council meeting here, said gas conversion workers had put red tags on 850 faulty and unsafe heating appliances of the 120,000 converted.

Part of each tag, he said, was sent to the city gas inspection office and the B.C. Electric sent out letters of warning.

ALL-NEW

★ SAVES HOT WATER ★ SAVES TIME ★ SAVES CLOTHES

SAVES HOT WATER — The Thor Futurmatic is really a "penny-pincher" when it comes to using hot water. The Thor requires less hot water than any other automatic washer . . . as little as five gallons for a complete load. Thor's exclusive Hydro-Swirl washing action plus cold water rinsing gives you the cleanest, brightest and whitest wash . . . with big savings in hot water.

SAVES TIME — With the amazing Thor Control Panel you wash clothes—automatically. Just set water temperature and washing time and your clothes are washed, rinsed and spun damp-dry . . . all ready for your dryer or your clothes line . . . a big saving in time for you.

SAVES CLOTHES — Thor's proven Hydro-Swirl action gives you agitator activated "live" water washing. It keeps clothes moving, tumbling over and over and under—gets everything from finest fabrics to work clothes sparkling clean, with the quickest but gentlest washing action . . . This means a big saving on the life of your clothes.

2 FULLY AUTOMATIC WASHING CYCLES COMPLETE CONTROL OF WATER TEMPERATURES

Not only is the Thor Futurmatic a "knock-out" in washing action but it's a "knock-out" in flexibility too. You get a choice of two washing cycles — one for regular fabrics and the other for delicate fabrics. What's more you have perfect control of washing time — you can stop, skip or repeat any phase of the washing cycle. And you can choose your water temperature for hot or warm washes and select warm or cold rinses . . . for either "full" or "half" loads — all automatically.

YOU GET THESE BIG EXTRA FEATURES, TOO!

THOR'S

Thor's Built-In Water and Soap Saver lets you re-use your hot, sudsy water one or more times, giving you additional savings every wash day.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by you, and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe. Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Garry Wayne Hodge, 10, Nashville, Tenn., for his question:

What Exactly Is St. Elmo's Fire?

St. Elmo's fire is caused by an overdose of electricity. Nature discharges this surplus current in an eerie display of ghostly candles. It is a rare spectacle, seen most often at sea in fall or early winter. Weather conditions during and after a snow storm are often just right for St. Elmo to light his flickering tapers.

The forces of electricity, it seems, are all around us. A steady stream of positive electricity seeps up from the earth to the air. The atmosphere has ways to keep this current neutralized with doses of negative electricity. For example, flashes of lightning provide dramatic doses of negative electricity. Earth and air try to keep the free electricity around us neutralized, or balanced in fairly equal doses of negative and positive.

Under certain conditions, however, the supply of negative or positive electricity gets out of balance. An electric storm builds up an overdose of negative, and, at certain seasons, the earth builds up an overdose of positive electricity. The balance seems to be a most equal during the summer months. During the fall and early winter, the earth seems to upset the balance with an overdose of Elmo's fire. They call it the corpulent electricity.

An electric storm discharges its overdose in a powerful flash of lightning. The surplus positive electricity may be released in a more genteel brush display. This is St. Elmo's fire. The surplus current tends to ooze from the tips of spikes and spires, mountain tops and even from the fingers of a person's outstretched hand.

The streaming lights may be heard to flicker and crackle. The display is soon over and no harm done. A beautiful show is sometimes seen around a church steeple. The spires and turrets are suddenly aglow with a host of Christmas candles. At other times the tip of a lightning rod may seem to catch fire and burn away in two or three fingers of ghostly light.

St. Elmo's fire, however, is far more noticeable on the sea than on the land. On a lonely ship there is nothing to distract from the fiery spectacle. Suddenly the masts and riggings are tipped with flaming streamers or with groups of flaring, crackling candles. Sailors consider the display a sign of good fortune. It is they who named it St. Elmo's fire, believing it to be a blessing from their favorite saint.

The whalers in the story Moby Dick encounter a display of St. Elmo's fire. They call it the corpulent electricity.

Noted Wildlife Photographer To Show Film Here Saturday

A naturalist who descended in a water-tight tank to film diving ducks, and cruised 250 miles over swamps in a blimp to photograph wildlife below, will be in Victoria, Saturday, to show one of his spectacular nature films.

Howard Cleaves, of New York, regarded as an ace cameraman in the specialized field of wildlife photography, will show his full-length picture "Animals at Night in Color" at the Oak Bay Junior High School Auditorium, at 8 p.m.

The meeting is sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society and the Audubon Society of Canada.

The movie will show the nighttime of osprey, chimney swift, great blue heron, deer, raccoon, muskrat and other animals and creatures which stalk at night.

The film is an amazing revelation of the nocturnal activities of varied animals.

DIVING SUIT

Mr. Cleaves' success in bagging creatures of the wild on film is largely due to his unique innovations and mechanical ingenuity.

One of these is a "diving suit" for his camera. This water-tight box, with powerful floodlights on either side, can be lowered at the end of a cable to obtain submarine shots, and operated by remote control.

Another unique contrivance is his chandelier of powerful lights car-

Indians Plan Legal Fight On Goldstream

A legal battle looms between Indian bands and the city over the proposed transfer of 700 acres of Goldstream property by the Greater Victoria Water Board to the Provincial government for park development.

Chief Thunderbird, otherwise known as Jean Baptist Paul, of Brentwood, who claims the land belongs to the Indians, said today legal action will be taken if the transfer plans go ahead.

Chief Thunderbird, who achieved fame as a wrestler in the United States and Europe, said the Indian claim to the land is supported by the Tsartlip, Saanich and Malahat bands.

"Indian title to the Goldstream properties can be proven," said the chief. "The white man has encroached upon the Indians' hereditary hunting and fishing grounds at Goldstream."

Transfer to the provincial government is planned at current session of the legislature.

The draft bill provides that the property will be transferred on trust, and developed and maintained as a class "A" park.

'QUIET MAN' KILLS HIS FREEDOM

BORGOMANERO, Italy (AP)—Pietro Preti, 49-year-old laborer, was dismissed from a mental asylum 10 days ago with the following notation: "A quiet man, well oriented for the future. Dismissed upon request of his wife." Wednesday Preti hammered his wife and their nine-year-old son to death and then quietly surrendered to police.

Family Life Probe Set in Victoria By United Church

A conference to probe Canadian family life in relation to Christianity will be held in a city church next fall, Rev. William Buckingham told the Victoria presbytery of the United Church Wednesday.

Speaking at a presbytery luncheon, Mr. Buckingham said the four-or five-day conference would be a "new type of mission" directed at welfare workers, teachers, psychologists, economists and sociologists.

The conference will be part of a four-year National Evangelistic Mission of the United Church which opened in 1955.

Our Heritage In Pawn?

MR. BENNETT'S deal with Mr. Wenner-Gren, which would hand over one-tenth of British Columbia's area and treasure to a foreign syndicate, is full of danger for the people of this province.

In the first place, we do not know what we are giving away. No one can possibly know what wealth is contained in the 40,000 square miles north of Fort McLeod. What timber, what minerals, what water power, oil, gas and other resources will be revealed by the surveys?

Even the benefactors of this bounty confess that they do not know. If they don't know, how can Mr. Bennett know? But obviously, no organization as experienced as these international financiers would embark on such a venture unless it promised fabulous rewards. And these rewards represent nothing but the heritage of the people of British Columbia.

Does Mr. Bennett even know that the Wenner-Gren interests have the money to finance such a colossal undertaking? How can he be sure that this mysterious syndicate is not seeking a franchise and a monopoly in order to peddle it in the market-places of the world, using our assets as a trading device? Is this a bona-fide deal or a mere stock promotion?

Clearly Mr. Bennett does not know very much about this syndicate when, by his own admission, he did not know, until the fact was published in the press, that his right-hand man, Mr. Einar Gunderson, was one of the syndicate's three directors.

It is unthinkable that a government employee, president of the government's railway, should be involved personally and financially in a deal between the government and private interests. It is incredible that Mr. Bennett did not find these things out before he consummated the deal.

Secondly, apart from Mr. Gunderson, whom are we dealing with? We are dealing with a mysterious syndicate whose backer, Mr. Wenner-Gren, was blacklisted during the early days of the war by both Great Britain and the United States for his intimate dealings with the German government, especially with the Luftwaffe chief, Goering. Are these the kind of people who should possess one-tenth of British Columbia?

Thirdly, this deal would close off a vast section of the north, with all its resources, to Canadian enterprise.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, for example, a long-established and famous Canadian organization, along with many others, will be barred from the Wenner-Gren empire under the terms of the "memo of intent." It points out that it has, over the years, produced some $2½ billions worth of mineral wealth for the people of Canada and rightly asks why it should be prevented from producing further wealth, under Canadian management, in the area of monopoly. The same restrictions, of course, apply to any other Canadian company.

In short, this whole deal appears to be improvident, ill-considered, and with the wrong people. Through the association of Mr. Gunderson, it smacks of political patronage on a staggering scale.

All British Columbians who value their heritage should insist that their members in the legislature examine every detail of this scheme before a tenth of the province is placed in pawn.

'FORGOT' TO TELL PREMIER ABOUT PERSONAL TIE-IN

Gunderson Defends Role In Huge Northern Project

By PETER MURRAY

Einar Gunderson said today he "can't see why" he shouldn't act at the same time as executive vice-president of the government-owned PGE and director of the Swedish firm planning a mammoth industrial empire in northern B.C.

The former Social Credit finance minister, and government economic adviser was revealed Wednesday as one of three directors of the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Co.

Not Director When Deal Signed

Premier Bennett said it was a billion-dollar scheme to build a 400-mile railway from the present terminus of the PGE to the Yukon border.

"That could possibly be," Mr. PGE to the Yukon border. Gunderson commented today.

"I must have forgotten to tell him. I'm on so many companies."

In a telephone interview with The Times from his Vancouver PGE office, Mr. Gunderson said there was no conflict between the two positions.

"We might as well be in a different province," he said. "The two railways are not serving the same area at all."

The Wenner-Gren interests, backed by Swedish industrialist, Birger Strid of Stockholm and financier Axel Wenner-Gren, Bernard Gore of London, signed plan as the first step of the

$5-$10 Boost in Pensions Gets Go-Ahead at Ottawa

Cabinet Action Expected Soon

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The government is agreed on the principle of increasing old age pensions and other social security payments but a decision still remains to be made on the amount of the increase and the manner in which it is to be paid.

Informed sources said the increase would be between $5 and $10.

The question was discussed during the Liberal caucus Wednesday.

While there was no definite indication given of the government's decision, Liberal members of Parliament came away from the caucus convinced that the government was agreed that there should be an increase in the pension payments.

Three Suggestions Advanced

Three suggestions are:

(1) A flat $10 increase to be paid as a supplementary allowance with a means test to old-age pensioners 70 years and over and to those receiving the old-age security payments, in the group 65 to 70. (There are many MPs opposed to the "means" test principle being revived for the aged.)

(2) A straight percentage increase across the board of about 15 per cent. This would provide an increase to pensioners of around $6. (The argument for the percentage increase is that it should be applied to family allowance payments as well and many MPs favor that proposition.)

(3) A $10 increase to the pensioners but excluding the family allowances. This would cost the treasury about $150,000,000 annually if it is made available not only to the aged but to blind pensioners, disabled pensioners and veterans or their widows.

Straight $10 Increase Favored

Favored proposition appears to be the straight $10 boost in pension payments without a means test. Members don't like the first proposition because of the idea of attaching a means test to the supplementary payment. They don't like the percentage increase because it would work out to less than $10 for pensioners.

However, the government must proceed cautiously as adding a $150,000,000 burden to the treasury is a heavy load at this time when Ottawa is confronted with the expected early implementation of the national hospitalization scheme.

In order to hold down the added load it might be that the government will only go for a $5-a-month or at the most a $7-a-month increase in pensions, the feeling being that implementation of the national hospitalization scheme would ease the burden on pensioners as they would no longer have hospital bills to worry about.

A $7-a-month increase would cost the treasury about $100,000,000.

109-YEAR-OLD VALENTINE FOR CENTENARIAN

A fragile, lace-edged Valentine that her mother gave father during their courtship days in 1848, was presented today to Mrs. Marion Holdcroft, 412 Linden, who celebrates her 100th birthday Feb. 27. Turned up this week by her son, Gordon, the Valentine contains a wistful verse entitled "Sincere Faith." Thirty-two years later, Mr. Barber noted on the back, "The same to each other, thank God! now as ever. Proved oft in sorrow as in joy. J.B." The Valentine was found among some old papers. (Times photo)

SYMES TO APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE

DUNCAN—Appeal proceedings will be launched to save Thomas Sydney Symes from the gallows, it was indicated today by his counsel, Alistair I. Macdonald.

Symes, 31, was found guilty in Nanaimo Assize Court Wednesday of the murder of Paul Richard Powling, and was sentenced to hang May 14.

"I have received no definite instructions regarding an appeal," Mr. Macdonald said, "but the usual course of events is that verdicts in matters such as this are appealed. Appeals are almost a matter of course." (See earlier story, Page 12.)

CAREER IN BRIEF

Einar Gunderson —Who Is He?

By MONTE ROBERTS

Einar Gunderson is basically an accountancy-trained man of business, who on at least one occasion has stated, neither modestly nor immodestly, "I know dollars."

He is one of those rare individuals to whom a balance sheet makes sense at first glance.

As a business man, he is almost completely unknown to the general public. But his name has frequently made headlines in connection with the government of British Columbia.

Since the Bennett government took office in 1952, Mr. Gunderson has performed a variety of tasks for it, and for agencies under its direction.

He has been minister of finance; economic adviser on federal-provincial relations; trade envoy on trips to Japan, the United Kingdom, Sweden, Norway, West Germany, France and Switzerland; and once-elected, twice-defeated candidate for a seat in the provincial legislature.

At present he is executive vice-president of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company; and a member of the B.C. Toll Highway and Bridges authority.

During 1953, after failing to win a seat in the 1953 general election and again in a by-election the same year, he served as minister of finance, turning over his portfolio to Premier Bennett on the eve of the opening of the February, 1954, session of the legislature.

But throughout 1954 he kept an office in the legislative buildings, served as "unofficial" finance minister, and reportedly continues to serve as one of Premier Bennett's closest advisers on matters of policy.

Although he ran three times for the legislature under the Social Credit banner, Mr. Gunderson has not, so far, another chance.

'DR. JOSEPH CYR' IN MORE TROUBLE

RCN Imposter Demara Turns Up Again, As Teacher

NORTH HAVEN, Me. (AP)

A new, well-liked schoolmaster on this island was identified by police today as a brilliant imposter, with distinguished, though brief, careers as Royal Canadian Navy surgeon, theologian and doctor of philosophy.

Detectives said the man arrested used the name of Martin Godgart and was an instructor since September in the town's small high school. He also was superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school and a Boy Scout leader.

But police said Godgart admitted he is Ferdinand Waldo Demara.

Officers said Demara, about 35, will be taken to Augusta, the state capital. He has been charged with false pretences in obtaining a teacher's certificate.

Demara has been in Maine before. In the late 1940s he was on the faculty of Notre Dame Institute at Alfred as Cecil Boyce Havmann, a doctor of philosophy in zoology.

He also posed as Robert Linton French, Ph.D., but his most spectacular role was as Dr. Joseph C. Cyr, Canadian in the Korean campaign who had been praised, at least by laymen, for his skill in difficult surgical procedures.

A local resident told police he noted a similarity between Godgart and the man in a magazine story on Demara two years ago.

Fingerprints of Demara matched those of the North Haven teacher.

Strike-Torn City Prays For Wounded Infant

PRINCETON, Ind. (AP)—Churches in this strike-bound community were opened for noon prayers today as slight improvement was reported in the condition of a non-striker's baby, shot through the head.

Hospital officials reported Julia Ann Russell, four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Russell, still in critical condition but slightly improved.

The baby, struck by one of seven bullets fired into her parents' trailer home at Oakland City early Wednesday, is paralyzed on her left side but is able to take food.

The International Association of Machinists, on strike at the plant since Nov. 5 over dismissal of a $1,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the person who fired the bullets.

Earlier, Potter and Brumfield offered $2,500 reward in the trailer shooting and in previous incidents, in which a non-striker's cottage was dynamited and another's home was peppered with shot.

Victoria Girl to Tell Story Of Miracle Escape From Wreck

Why was 13-year-old Anita Goertz saved by an apparent miracle when her father's yacht was wrecked off the coast of Spain last January and all the rest of her family drowned?

In Weekend Magazine, included with next Saturday's Times, an exclusive article by Eva-Lis Wuorio will say the people of Aviles, the little village on the northern coast of Spain where the tragedy occurred believe that "God must have a plan for her."

Anita's father, Helmut Goertz, widely known Victoria photographer; her mother and brother drowned when the Goertz 47-ton yacht was caught in the grip of a fearful storm and broken to pieces close to shore.

Horrible spectators saw the yacht break up—but some considerable time later a giant wave deposited a dark-haired child on the sands.

It was Anita. The girl later recovered from her ordeal at Gijon and was subsequently brought back to Canada to live with her uncle in Edmonton.

In the Weekend article Miss Wuorio recounts the tragedy, capturing all its horror, and relates how the people of the little fishing village have reacted to it. They tell a stranger quite simply: "She is a child of God, this little one. She is in His hands."

Anita agrees. In a companion piece in Weekend she tells her own story of the tragedy to Stephen Franklin. The formerly Victoria school girl in her uncle's house, told Mr. Franklin: "Yes, I think it was a miracle."

Police Jail Two

A Victoria man, Barry Irwin Keele, 26, no fixed address, was charged in city police court today with the armed holdup Monday of James Bay branch of Canadian Bank of Commerce.

He reserved election of trial until Friday morning to enable him to obtain counsel.

Saanich policemen, Det. Robin Stewart and Const. Robert A. Peterson, picked up Keele and a companion as they were about to step out of a car on Tolmie Avenue in Saanich at 12.40 a.m. today.

The two were arrested a few minutes later by city detectives Alex Briggs and Gus Munro, who had been working on the case since the robbery at 2.30 p.m. Monday.

The charge stated Keele committed the robbery with an offensive weapon and obtained $3,000 from the bank.

NO MONEY FOUND
None of the money has been recovered.

The second man is being detained, but may be released, police said.

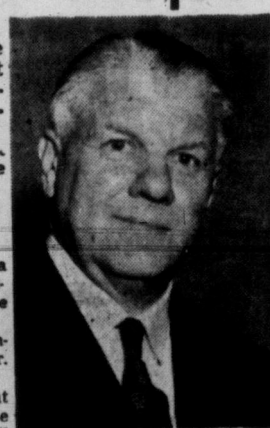

Two men were responsible for the hold-up, according to witnesses. One man remained outside the bank in a stolen getaway car.

WENT TO SEATTLE

Police said the two suspects had driven to Nanaimo Monday, and had gone aboard the 4.15 p.m. ferry to Vancouver. Then they drove to Seattle, where they spent Wednesday, and it is believed they had just arrived back from their trip when arrested.

Keele appeared in court wearing a brown tweed topcoat and open-necked shirt.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, who announced the project in the legislature Tuesday, was the other witness.

Mr. Gunderson said he had not acted as economic advisor to the government for a year.

Russ Develop Deadly Rocket

LONDON (AP)—The British government says the Soviet Union is developing a nuclear-headed rocket that can climb more than 100 miles into space at speeds of more than 5,000 miles an hour.

To prevent possible attack by such weapons, Defence Minister Duncan Sandys told the House of Commons Wednesday night, Britain must be prepared to meet it with devastating retaliation.

... PROJECT

wished Canadians on the board.

There will be more British Columbians appointed directors of the firm in the near future, he said.

Another reason Mr. Gunderson gave for his appointment was that the other two directors were going to be out of the province a good deal of the time and he would be here to act on their behalf.

Mr. Gunderson said at present he held only one share in the company to qualify him for membership on the board of directors.

The Wenner-Gren Foundation is a "non-profit" organization in any case, he added.

To a comment by Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory criticizing his dual capacity as Wenner-Gren director and economic advisor to the government, Mr. Gunderson said:

"I wonder if Mr. Gregory is still fighting the 1953 by-election?"

It was a reference to the spirited contest for the Victoria seat vacated by Percy Wright to make room for Mr. Gunderson after his defeat in the 1953 election.

Mr. Gregory won out and the government gave up its attempts to get Mr. Gunderson elected to the legislature.

Reaction was swift to the disclosure that Mr. Gunderson had been appointed to the Wenner-Gren firm.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan said he should resign from "one or the other" of his positions with the Swedish interests and the PGE.

"It's not ethical, Mr. Strachan said.

The CCF leader also charged that Premier Bennett's statement that he had not known of Mr. Gunderson's appointment was "unbelievable."

"It's too far-fetched," he said. "Our credulity has already been stretched to the breaking point by some of their actions but this is too much," Mr. Strachan said.

The Opposition leader said he expected to find an opportunity during the Throne Speech debate within the next week to "cover the whole issue" of the Wenner-Gren development.

"INTERESTING"

Mr. Strachan said it was "interesting to note that Mr. Gunderson was economic advisor to the government when the initial negotiations for this project took place.

"His close association with the government until now, and the fact that he is now the director of a company which promises one of the largest developments in this province, must raise the question of the ethic of his conduct in the minds of the people of this province," he said.

"FIRST I'VE HEARD"

When Premier Bennett was queried on the matter he told reporters:

"It's the first I've heard of it. I have no knowledge that Mr. Gunderson is on the board, all I know about the officers of the company was that mentioned in the memorandum of intention.

"Anyway, he's a private citizen."

Lands Minister Williston also said he didn't know about Mr. Gunderson's appointment.

IMPARTIAL?

Mr. Gregory said:

"It does not seem to be possible that Mr. Gunderson could perform his duty as economic advisor to the province of British Columbia impartially, and at the same time be a director of the company on whose behalf such a vast area of the province has been placed under reserve."

Company director Bernard Gore, who will manage the B.C. operations, said he was "astounded" that Mr. Gunderson should be attacked.

"His position with our company has nothing to do with the PGE," Mr. Gore said.

The development plan as a whole was questioned today from a number of quarters.

WARNING

Prominent Canadian industrialist and financier Ronald Graham warned that the scheme "might come a cropper in the end."

"Have these people got their money to follow through?" Mr. Graham asked in a telephone interview from Beverly Hills, Calif., where he is holidaying. "There have been other schemes before this."

B.C. trade officials urged the government not to rush into an agreement with Wenner-Gren.

"It is so large in concept that we hope the citizens of B.C. and interested bodies will have the opportunity to examine it and submit their ideas before anything is finalized," said Brenton

He also said: (1) Atomic bombs are in steady production in Britain, (2) The RCAF is equipped with a substantial stock of A-bombs and (3) Britain has almost completed development of its first "megaton" bomb (the technical term usually applied to the hydrogen bomb).

After hearing Sandys' report, the House voted 302 to 243 in support of the Macmillan government's defence policies.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today notified the Western European Union council of its intention to cut the size of its troop commitments in West Germany.

Similar notification is expected to be made later today to the NATO council in Paris.

S. Brown, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

"GIVE-AWAY"

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C.-Yukon Chamber of Mines, said he feared the government was "giving away" one-tenth of the province to a single corporation.

"If the government clamps a reserve on the area for Wenner-Gren it will block the plans of many other large companies interested in northern B.C.," Mr. Elliott said.

Dr. M. V. Smitheringale, well-known B.C. consulting-mining engineer and geologist, said the scheme was "outrageous" and "out of order."

Mr. Elliott said he knew of at such as Consolidated Mining and Smelting "which have contributed largely to the growth and prosperity of the province," should have equal right to develop the area.

"Consolidated's Sullivan mine has produced $2,500,000,000 worth of silver, lead, zinc and tin," he said. "Surely if there are lead and zinc deposits in this McLeod Lake area, they should have the right to go after them."

Mr. Elliott said he knew of at least six companies that have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the area and should have equal rights to stake claims.

COMPLAINT

One large exploration firm has already lodged a complaint over the plan and others are likely to follow suit, he said.

Dr. Smitheringale added:

"If we are foolish enough to give someone a concession on a day that he can profit from 10 or 15 years from now, we need our heads examined."

"We are very definitely opposed to this deal. It is very much out of order from the mining angle."

Mr. Elliott said the step "could bring us back to the feudal age."

"This sets up a concession system that the mining industry has steered clear of over the years. It is contrary to our system of free enterprise."

NO CONCESSIONS

Premier Bennett has replied to criticism by stating that "no concessions whatsoever" have been made to the Wenner-Gren interests.

"The company has not been granted anything over and above what was mentioned in the letter of intent filed in the legislature on Tuesday," the premier said.

"No special grants have been given. Nor have tax structures been arranged. They will have to pay their fair share. There have been all kinds of giveaways in the past," the Premier added, "but this is not one of them. The people will get their full share of the resources of the province."

UN REJECTS RUSS CHARGE AGAINST U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations steering committee today rejected a Soviet demand for a General Assembly debate on the Eisenhower Middle East doctrine and other United States "aggressive actions."

The 16-country committee decided against the proposed debate by a vote of 8 to 6. Those voting against inscription of the Soviet complaint were Italy, France, Dominican Republic, Nationalist China, Denmark, Peru, Turkey and El Salvador. Voting for it were the United States, Britain, India, Egypt, Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Pakistan abstained. Assembly President Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand did not vote.

Russia was expected to reopen the issue on the floor of the 80-country assembly, but there appears little chance the committee decision will be reversed.

GUNDERSON

nounced his views on Social Credit monetary theories.

During the 1953 campaign, the Conservative party arranged for questions at nearly all of his campaign meetings, asking for his stand on monetary reform. In each case, he defeated attempts of the hecklers to pin him down.

ORTHODOX

During the same campaign P. A. Gagliardi, minister of highways, said Mr. Gunderson "is the most orthodox financier in Canada."

Mr. Gunderson has made an outstanding success of his private business career. He is a partner in the accountancy firms of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co., Vancouver, and Gunderson, Stokes Walton and Cockburn, Victoria.

Mr. Gunderson is a director of many business organizations, two of the principal ones being the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which handles the majority of provincial government banking transactions, and the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Foundation, his directorship in which was effective Nov. 21, 1956, and revealed Wednesday.

A stocky, broad-shouldered man with a full, strong face and shining silver hair, he projects his quiet confidence better from the public platform.

At one time he said "I have always wanted to get into government business."

ALBERTA START

His first connection with government was in Alberta, where he did a small amount of auditing for the United Farmers' government, later set up the lands and mines department, income tax department, and the sales tax department.

In each case, he was the organizing force.

Einar Maynard Gunderson was born in Cooperstown, North Dakota, in 1899, but much of his young life and his advanced education was in Canada.

He graduated from the University of Saskatchewan, served for five years with a firm of chartered accountants in Edmonton before entering government service, and returned to private practice as a chartered accountant, also in Edmonton, in 1936.

AT VANCOUVER

In 1945, he moved to Vancouver, and entered into partnership with G. W. Thompson & Co., income tax specialists, before joining his present firms.

He is married, and has two sons and one daughter. One of the sons, Derek, is with the James Lovick Advertising Agency, which arranged the press conference following announcement of the development project.

The Canadian Who's Who summarizes his affiliations: "Freemason; Social Credit; United Church; recreation, reading; Clubs, Rotary; Canadian; Vancouver; Union; Shaughnessy Heights Golf Club."

'EMPIRE OF RICHES'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Businessmen here—pioneers and young alike—chuckled and radiated enthusiasm Wednesday at the thought of being the gateway to a planned gigantic industrial empire.

C. A. Warner, editor of the Prince George Citizen, said of the fabulous plans—announced Tuesday in Victoria—of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren for a complete survey of the 40,000 square-mile area north of Prince George:

"It's a 40-year dream, about to come true. It confirms the prediction of the pioneers that our vast hinterland is an empire of riches."

"It consolidates Prince George as the gateway and the hub of north-central B.C."

Board of Trade leaders like Al Bowie, Wallie West, Harold Moffat, saw three years ago when the city was hit by a three-month woodworkers' strike that new industry and business must arrive for the city to continue prosperous.

While the Wenner-Gren development plans remain indefinite until results of the current survey are known, they include such industries as pulp mills, steel mills and hydro-electric power plants.

An estimated 4,000,000 horsepower roars undeveloped in the river system north of Prince George.

The Rocky Mountain trench is often described by mining men as a "mineral paradise."

"It is, perhaps, the most highly mineralized belt in the province," said Thomas Elliott, manager of the B.C. Yukon Chamber of Mines, at Vancouver.

The northern extension of the PGE Railway will pass through ver.

'BABEL OF SOUND'

Better Language Needed—Massey

SACKVILLE, N.B. (BUP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey made a plea Wednesday for clearer, simpler and fresher writing and speaking.

He was delivering the Josiah Wood lecture at Mount Allison University, one of the continent's most noted seats of learning. Mr. Massey has had an international reputation as a scholar and a master in the use of words, spoken and written.

Action in today's complex world waits in communication, through speech or writing, he said. The trouble is, he added, the communication "too often emerges not as a clear trumpet call but as a babel of uncertain sounds."

More people are writing today than ever before, he said. The writers he spoke of included only the creative artist in words, but the scores of thousands in government, business, industry, journalism, radio, television and elsewhere whose work is the writing of reports of one kind or another. "Our language will be in peril until we can train the craftsman who... fix their hearts and minds on the good writing that is rooted in clarity, in honesty, in simplicity," Mr. Massey said. "The writer of prose must never forget the essence of poetry, an honesty of mind which compels spontaneity."

"In this day, every kind of slovenly language finds its defender. Those who strive to correct language today find themselves reviled at once by the 'expert' and by the self-appointed spokesman for the multitude."

"For all their talking, bad language is still bad, and the perverse use of bad language is a crime against humanity." To often, Mr. Massey said, bad language is bad because it takes three pages to say what could be said in one "and so wastes the time and wears the spirits of the reader." Again, he added, bad language is so because "it is ugly (with) neither shape nor form, harmony nor rhythm."

Moreover, he went on, it's bad because it is obscure. After sorting out all the clauses, phrases and connecting words "we are still left wondering exactly what the writer means."

VARIETIES NEEDED
"Today we are treating our language as the Victorians treated their building materials," the Governor-General said. "As they needed more buildings of many different kinds for many different people, so we need more language of different sorts, for different purposes."

Like the Victorian builders we have too much to do, we have to do it too quickly, and we have too much to do it with. In the urgency of our task we can forget to be cautious and humble.

"We can encumber our ground with a vast number of linguistic absurdities." Mr. Massey said he has no patience with the dealer in jargon. Obscurity in speech and writing, he said, is often purely conventional. He cited the doctor who, when asked the meaning of "bilateral, periorbital haematoma and left subconjunctival haemorrhage," translated it as "two lovely black eyes."

There are only two creators of language, Mr. Massey said. One is the "exuberant spontaneity" of the crowd and the other "the conscious creative art of the writer."

"I do not, for a moment, forget the guardian of the treasure, the much-maligned grammarian, the scholar," Mr. Massey said. "It may be true that without the vigor of the multitude, language would become bloodless and feeble."

"It is equally true that without the scholar's anxious, refining criticism, it would be corrupt and unwieldy."

Nanaimo Crash Kills Salesman

Second Driver Undergoing Brain Operation in City

A two-car collision just before midnight on the Island Highway, three miles north of Nanaimo, killed a Nanaimo man and seriously injured another.

Dead is G. Sydney Romeril, 61, Howard Avenue, salesman for Ryan Co. Ltd., who was driving a panel truck. In Royal Jubilee Hospital here is 19-year-old Graham Turner, driver of the second vehicle involved in the crash. He was brought to Victoria by ambulance from Nanaimo, and at press time was still undergoing brain surgery.

James Atterbury of Port Alberni, a passenger in the Turner automobile, is in Nanaimo General Hospital undergoing treatment for minor concussion and shock.

The accident occurred just one-half mile east of Wellington station on the new highway outlet northward from Nanaimo.

Both vehicles were demolished. An inquest has been scheduled for Friday.

Negligence Case At Nanaimo Court

CITY PAYS BET

Travel Chief Takes Topper

John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Travel Association, today was appointed "ambassador plenipotentiary" by Victoria aldermen for the job of taking a silk top hat to the Mayor of Regina.

The city is presenting the hat as well as a smaller copper top, to the Prairie city in payment of a bet over which city would reach its community chest target last fall.

Mr. Fisher, a kindly man, as well as a lawyer, broadcaster, writer, scholar and traveller, received an egg-shaped badge accrediting him as a special ambassador from Victoria.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, acting mayor, presented Mr. Fisher with a tape to "measure the height of the snow in the prairie city" and a blue and white scarf to wear on his mission. With the "gifts" went a warning from Acting Mayor Dowell of the dangers of traveling to the snow-covered prairies.

RCMP Const. Frank Minty, Colwood detachment, spotted the car owned by Norman Vik, 630 Foul Bay, and picked up Thomas William Graham to be charged. The auto was taken from where it was parked at 2030 Douglas.

Both men were remanded to Friday for sentence.

Protests Mounting, Beebe Tells Council

The proposed zoo in Thetis Lake Park today lost the support of a group which had indicated earlier it would form a zoological society to assist in the project.

Frank L. Beebe, former curator of the Stanley Park zoo at Vancouver, wrote to city council cancelling "any support stated or implied" regarding transfer here of the Port Alberni zoo of Paul Hertel.

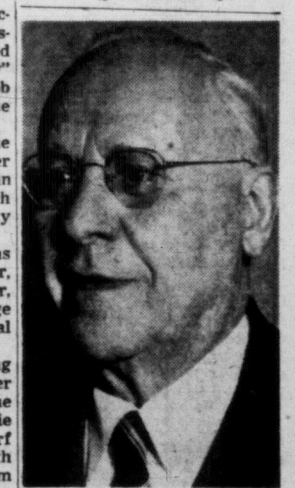

Mr. Beebe gave as a reason for his action the fact his group had been given no opportunity by council to state conditions under which it was prepared to lend support.

He wrote: "Personally, I am opposed to the idea of the showing of foreign animals in little cages to the public for an admission charge."

"I wish to add my personal protest to the list of those that I feel sure are already accumulating."

The city has received several letters protesting the zoo transfer advocated by Ald. Geoffrey Edgewell.

Ald. Edgewell had hinted earlier that the $10,000 required by Mr. Hertel to move his zoo here might be put up by such a group as the proposed zoological society.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERSHIP In James Bay PTA was presented to one of its founders, A. Allison Campbell, 2824 Burdick, at a ceremony in the school Tuesday. Principal of South Park School for 35 years prior to retirement in 1945, Mr. Campbell has been associated with the James Bay PTA since 1928. He received his award from the present principal of South Park, Wilfred Orchard. (Times photo).

ASK The TIMES

Q.—From where did our content get celery, much prized article of food? Mrs. L.D.T.

A.—The Encyclopedia Britannica in an article says: "Celery (Apium graveolens, a biennial plant, Fam. Umbelliferae which in its wild state occurs in England by the sides of ditches and in marshy places, especially near the sea, producing a furrowed stalk and compound leaves with wedge-shaped leaflets, the whole plant having a coarse rank taste and a peculiar smell. It is also widely distributed in the north temperate region of the Old World. By improvement through breeding and selection the stalks lose their acrid qualities and assume the sweetish aromatic taste peculiar to celery as a salad plant. A large number of varieties are cultivated by gardeners, which are ranged under three classes—green, white and red, the improved green varieties being generally the best flavored and crisp and tender."

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

LOCAL SHIPYARDS TURN TO INDUSTRIAL PROJECTS

Huge new $100,000 fabrication shed for industrial equipment nearing completion at Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant points up efforts of local shipyards to keep volume of work flowing, employment up, despite fall-off in ship orders.

Similar new building was completed several months ago at Yarrows Ltd. Yards find themselves nearing end of navy new-ship and modernization orders, have difficulty in competing with foreign yards, especially in Japan, for new ships. Work forces, now at all-time peak, are expected to taper off slowly unless large volume of industrial orders can be attained.—(Times photo)

MONTÉ ROBERTS

I told you and I told you and I TOLD you—don't throw away those old Gundy buttons.

The voters didn't vote for Gundy, but he seems to be elected anyhow.

I'm not surprised that Premier Bennett didn't know anything about Gunderson's job with the Wenner-Gren outfit.

After all, Gundy's a busy man, and can't be expected to take time to tell the premier every little thing he's mixed up in.

So much for frenzied finance. Now on to greater things. Such as spoonerized puns.

For many a moon, I have been on the hunt for a genuine, brand new, never-before-told-or-published spoonerized pun.

And I think perhaps I have found one—aided and abetted by an oldie forwarded by our ex-associate, Lance Whittaker.

First, the oldie: A man owned a beautiful summer home by the sea. The only marring aspect was the continual nuisance—in noise and otherwise—of myriad sea birds. So the man took to throwing rocks at the birds. This annoyed a bird-loving neighbor, who remonstrated with the rock thrower—only to receive this reply:

"I'll leave no fern unstoned."

And now—if you can stand it—for the newie, inspired by the above:

A pair of sea birds got married and, in the due course of time, the female sea bird laid an egg. This was a great source of pride to the male sea bird, who looked forward with keen anticipation to being a father. Thus he was highly alarmed when he returned from a short absence to find the egg gone from the nest, and the lady tern busily scratching together a pile of leaves with her claws.

"What's the matter?" he cried. "Didn't the egg hatch? Am I not a father?"

"Of course it did and yes you are," said the female sea bird, continuing to pile up leaves.

"Then what are you doing?" demanded her husband.

"I'm leaving over a new tern," she explained.

'Commie' Teacher Raised in City

By TONY DICKASON

H. Keith Ralston, 35, Victoria-born, has a history of upsetting legislative members.

Now a Vancouver English teacher, he said "I'm the man they mean" when asked if he was the "well-known Communist" whom M.L.A. Archie Gibbs told the legislature was teaching at a junior high school.

An active Labor Progressive (Communist) party member for years, he said in Vancouver he quit the party two years ago.

Previously, he was Victoria correspondent for the LPP weekly, the Pacific Tribune, and in that position took scathing swipes at legislative functions.

SOUR ASIDES

Sitting beside him in the legislative press gallery, it was easy to overhear his comments on functions on the floor. They ranged from "what a neanderthal type," to "oh, for gosh sakes," all sotto-voce.

At that time he referred to himself as "a black-listed university professor."

He was one of the most brilliant students developed by Victoria schools, educated at Oaklands, Victoria High and Victoria College. He won numerous scholarships, both at school here and at University of British Columbia. After leaving UBC he joined the RCN, and served more than three years as a lieutenant.

MOTHER HERE

His mother, Mrs. G. M. Ralston, lives here at 1256 Acton. "The first thing Keith did when this trouble started was to telephone me," she said today. "He didn't want me to worry."

That was the same position he took when he was here with the Tribune. He said several times, "Mother is sick, I must not do anything to worry her." He was described by principal of the Temperance Junior High, A. E. Henderson as "a very satisfactory and hard-working staff member."

Said Mr. Ralston of his past associations: "I don't think I have to give any reasons why I did these things. I have not been a party member for two years. I've been minding my own business."

"So far as my beliefs go, I feel as a private citizen I had the right to believe what I wanted or change my opinions if I wanted. I can't see how my past beliefs are any concern of Mr. Gibbs. I have never tried to make any secret of my background."

Said his mother: "That's Keith. He's very honest, that's the way we brought them up." Mr. Ralston Sr. died in 1943, and another son, Bruce, was killed in a 1946 riding accident at the Willows. Another brother, Gordon, is an electrical engineer.

MARRIED

The teacher was married to a B.C. girl in Sidney, N.S., while in the navy. They have two children.

He was well-liked here by press gallery members though not granted a gallery membership because of party affiliations.

Despite the stand of Mr. Gibbs Greater Victoria School Board and other B.C. school boards make no discrimination against political beliefs when hiring teachers, board chairman W. H. Golby said.

He called Mr. Gibbs "out of order" in remarks that a "leading Communist" had been hired. "I don't approve of a person being attacked. There is no finger pointing among our teachers," said Mr. Golby.

"There has been a great deal of witch-hunting in the United States and it is very difficult to assess the results," he added.

He said the Victoria board has never had to take a stand on the question of hiring Communists, and felt the question would be a matter for the B.C. Teachers' Federation to discuss.

"I think Mr. Gibbs was out of order in bringing it up in the legislature," he said.

Rapid Expansion in Radio, TV Forecast Here by Broadcaster

Rapid expansion by both radio and television in British Columbia was predicted here today by M. P. Finnerty, president, B.C. Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

He told the 11th annual meeting at the Empress Hotel this growth was assured due to increased national and local advertising which in turn resulted from competition increase within the association itself.

The association, said Mr. Finnerty, owner-operator of CKOK, Penicton, now comprises 18 radio and one television station.

CHEK-TV, all privately owned, exceptions are CBUT, Vancouver, and a station in Prince Rupert, operated by the CBC.

TWO NEW STATIONS

Examples of the expansion, he said, were a new Kamloops TV station, already licensed, and a station in Penicton, application for which is now being studied by the CBC board of governors. Two new radio stations are also due, at Quessnel and Kitimat.

Mr. Finnerty, however, said he was "not optimistic" on findings of the Fowler Commission, now studying aspects of broadcasting in Canada.

The association, he said, wants allocation of TV and radio licenses where frequencies are available and money to put the stations into operation. Also requested were fewer operating non-technical regulations.

Advertising outlook for radio was "excellent," he said, as national advertisers were now again utilizing that medium after the original TV push.

Radio had to meet this TV competition, so it sparked enterprise, with the result radio has again attracted big-money advertising.

To the question would not more outlets, both radio and TV in B.C., hurt the industry by increasing competition to the point where nobody could make a living? he said:

"We can't say we are for the regulation of competition, on principle." If that stand was taken, then CBC regulations, he indicated, would have to be supported by the association.

The two-day convention opened this morning and was scheduled to hear B.C. Centennial Committee chairman L. J. Wallace, and to participate in a TV panel this afternoon under chairmanship of Charles White, general manager, CHEK-TV.

The session Friday will include an address by Eric Brackman, advertising manager, Canadian Safeway Ltd., election of officers, and an address by T. J. Allard, executive vice president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Keyed to Household Budgets
Are Perkier Pottery Pieces

By PENNY SAVER

Little things that are fun to buy as extras for your home or as last-minute gifts are in abundance, especially in one small store I visited recently. There I didn't know which way to look, for pottery, metal and glass pieces in the most appealing shapes and styles popped out from everywhere. Here's a rolling pin planter with a wrought iron back piece. Certainly just the thing to brighten your kitchen or pantry, the cost is keyed to a household budget, at just $1. Hang it on the wall and plant your favorite length of ivy in it.

For knick-knack shelves here are perky threesomes. Little animal families of glazed china are three for $1. You'll see snooty little Pekinese, tiny, delicate chihuahuas, graceful flamingoes, hoppy rabbits and . . . contented cows. There's a little dachshund with six pups and a cat with six kittens for the same price, $1. Menagerie collectors will have fun with these beautifully-shaped animals that look so real you expect them to bark, meow, moo or something.

wood, and cats of china, and other shapes with metal highlights. All are $1.75 a pair.

More china items—I found candle holders the likes of which I've never seen before. They stand about three inches high, and are really little soldiers, saluting. The soldiers are like animated candy sticks, red and white striped. They'll thrill the youngsters in the family, especially at party time. Each holder is 75 cents.

Candles, not for the children's candlesticks, but for your formal table setting for a special occasion, are designed of Oriental carved pure wax. Characters are engraved all over the attractive candles that come in white, gold or green. They really are lovely, and you'll not begrudge the price, $1.65 each. They're imported from the Orient.

Moo . . . that's just what these novel salt and pepper shakers do. I've been trying to think of a word to explain the noise that comes forth as you shake the shakers upside down! They moo, (a rather high-pitched moo) really, more like a crying moo as the salt and pepper come out. There are men of carved

Model UN Assembly Planned
In Victoria in Early March

Plan for the first United Nations Model Assembly to be held in Victoria on March 1 and 2 was given to members of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club at their meeting Monday evening.

The project is designed to acquaint citizens of Victoria with work of the UN Assembly and to give students and the public an appreciation of work being done by that body. The Victoria BPW Club, sponsors of the assembly, has named Miss Verna Beek as chairman, with J. H. Ford, of United Nations Association, Victoria Branch, the co-chairman.

High school students of Victoria and district will take part in the three sessions which will be held Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday morning in Central Junior High School. Guest speaker at the Friday session will be Dr. N. Scarf. Saturday morning, following the session, a luncheon will be held in the BPW clubroom, 902 Government Street, for students taking part, at which Dr. H. L. Campbell will be guest speaker.

Luncheon arrangements are in charge of Miss Nona Rich, Miss Ella Brett and Mrs. F. McClement.

It was reported at Monday's meeting that two cartons of good used clothing as well as a quantity of personal necessities have been packed and sent to Toronto for further shipment to Austria where they will be distributed to business and professional women refugees from Hungary. A total of $83 in cash has also been donated.

A message from the international president, Miss Margaret Hyndman, QC, was read by Mrs. Vera Wade, who also reported many out-of-town guests are expected to attend the international banquet on Feb. 23 in Oak Bay Beach Hotel when G. Reid Elliott, professor of commerce and economics, Victoria College, will speak on "Automation and Its Effects on the Individual."

Mrs. Ruby Masters, who was in the chair, was appointed delegate to the provincial conference to be held at Pinewood Lodge, Manning Park, in May. Second delegate is Mrs. M. Laughlin.

An appeal for pocket paper and magazines for patients in the isolation ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital was made by Mrs. L. Bailey.

Spring Millinery Added Touch
At Auxiliary Bridge and Tea

A collection of 30 of spring's most attractive hats was presented in a showing arranged by the T. Eaton Company at the St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary bridge tea and bonnet show, Wednesday afternoon, in the nurses' residence.

Showing featured the newest straws, with a few fine felts. The new look for spring presented height and dimension without being top-heavy. Many of the hats were in the off-face style. Some were draped and there were turbans and profile effects. In trimmings, flowers, fruit and even bumble bees were featured. Colors were as fresh as a spring garden.

Much applause greeted Mrs. Ina Harford when she appeared wearing a Breton sailor in delicate pink straw. It was wreathed with a garland of grey silk petals and had a perky cerise shaded silk bow at the back. Mrs. Pat Martindale received acclaim for the French model hat, by Delphine, of Paris, she wore in the new sidelong look being featured in Vogue. It was of navy and white hand-stitched straw with white linen trim. Mrs. Irene Murray was featured wearing the newest and smartest color for spring—violet. This was a softly manipulated felt "rocker" draped and accented with bumble bees as a trim.

The models appeared in a huge Valentine frame. Gloves and accessories were also shown. Mrs. Kay Ellis was the commentator.

More than 40 tables of bridge were in play in the auditorium where the showing of hats was presented. Many other guests came in for tea, served from a head table in the lounge, which was decorated with a low arrangement of white chrysanthemums and red carnations and red candles in silver holders. Presiding at the silver urns were Mrs. Donald Cox, Mrs. Eric Martin, Mrs. Stuart Keate and Mrs. Charles Y. Brown.

The new auxiliary president, Mrs. C. Rose received guests. Convener of the affair was Mrs. A. T. Johnson, assisted by Miss M. King. Tea conveners were Mrs. J. Cochran and Mrs. E. N. Boetcher. In charge of a membership table was

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About religious complications of an engaged couple:

My 21-year-old son, who is in the service, has recently given an engagement ring to an 18-year-old girl, whom we like very much and who is quite mature for her age. Because of religious differences, the girl's parents refuse to make any announcement.

They even ordered her out of the house, but relented soon after. We feel that some announcement should be made. If it is permissible that I do it, how would I go about it?

Louise Davis answers:

It wouldn't be correct or proper for you to make any public announcement. If the girl's parents won't do it, there is nothing that you can do. If the girl is wearing her ring, the grapevine will see that the news gets around fast. I'll make a guess that if these young people continue to be serious about marriage, the parents will accept the situation and will fall in line eventually. They relented once and chances are that they will relent again if they realize that the couple mean business. It would be wise not to put any more obstacles in their way to antagonize them further. Defying them now by making any kind of announcement would probably fan the flame. Something tells me that everyone "will live happily ever after!" This is no novel situation. There are many couples with religious differences in their families, who have married happily under similar circumstances.

Many babies seem to like raisins as a dessert. This is an excellent way for baby to get his iron, if he likes them. They can also be sprinkled on cereal, mixed with bananas or eaten out of a box in the park.

AYLMER TREAT OF THE WEEK

Quick... easy... and mighty good!

You know how good Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice is as a breakfast eye-opener or as a meal starter. But do you know there are dozens* of other ways to use it? This Tomato Aspic, for one. Hearty enough to please your men folk, it's glamorous enough to serve when the "girls" come for lunch. Of course, it tastes good because it calls for Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice!

What makes this one juice so tasty? This. Only very special tomatoes, "babied" from the time they're seeds to the time they grow perfect red-ripe, are tenderly squeezed to juice. Then a special recipe is used so the juice stays the same delightful consistency from top to bottom of the can. Always the same. Just chill—serve—and enjoy. Keep several cans of Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice on hand—always.

*More tasty treats with Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice

NIPPY NIGHT SPECIAL. When it's cold outside, be warm inside with hot tomato juice. Just heat Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Serve in mugs. Garnish with popcorn.

Use as part of the liquid in gravies and meat pies. Use as the liquid in making tea biscuits and dumplings.

For spiced Tomato Juice, add your choice of lemon juice, a dash of Tabasco, or Worcestershire, or horseradish, or cayenne pepper.

TOMATO ASPIC
(Makes 8 servings)

3 1/2 cups (1 1/2 twenty-ounce cans) Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice
2 tablespoons gelatine
1 bay leaf
1 to 2 stalks celery (include tops)

1 tablespoon scraped onion
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar

Soften gelatine in 1/2 cup of the cold Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Simmer together remaining tomato juice, bay leaf, celery, onion, sugar and salt, for 10 minutes. Strain. There should be 2 1/2 cups of liquid. Add softened gelatine and remaining ingredients. Stir until gelatine has dissolved. Pour into ring mould. Chill until firm. To serve, unmould and fill centre with a creamy potato salad. Surround mould with cold sliced meat. A most delicious lunch or supper!

Centennial Cookbook Compiled By Women's Institutes to Have Many Old-Time Recipes

Members of women's institutes in British Columbia are busy at the moment delving into their pantries and into the pantries of friends and relatives to find the most delectable recipes in the province for a cookbook they are compiling for B.C.'s centennial year.

It's a province-wide search that includes turning up recipes used back in the days when the first white women came into B.C.

Home economics convener, Mrs. Clyde White, is in charge of compiling the book, assisted by secretaries of the 16 women's institute districts in the province: Arrow Lakes, Bulkley-Tweedsmuir, Cariboo, Central Interior, Douglas, Fraser Valley, Hopedale, Kootenay East, Kootenay West, Kettle River, Okanagan North and Salmon Arm, Okanagan South and Similkameen, Peace River, Thompson North, Vancouver Island North and Vancouver Island South. Each district is responsible for one section of the book.

Included in the cookbook will be a section on the cooking of wild game with some of the recipes dating back to early years.

Some of the recipes will be worded in the phraseology of the old-time cooks of grand-mother's day, with "a pinch of this and a bit of that."

One precious recipe already accepted for the book urges that the cooking be done in a "quiet oven."

With the thought that there will be many family reunions during British Columbia's centennial year of 1958, with sons and daughters and grandchildren returning to the "old homestead," the conveners have included a section on quantity cooking with many of the recipes used in the days of the big families, big farms, large threshing crews that had to be fed as they worked, and country dances where midnight supper, breakfast and sometimes, mid-day meals were served.

HISTORY INCLUDED

Commencing each section of the cookbook will be a short history of the district from which the recipes have been taken. There will also be stories of the work of women's institutes in British Columbia during the past century.

In these stories will be information as to when the first soil was cultivated in the province; the first garden planted; the first ranches for cattle and sheep started; the first field crops sown. Women's Institute members are also gathering facts about the first agricultural fairs and shows in British Columbia.

There will be stories, too, of the earliest settlers how they arrived and descriptions of their clothes.

Mrs. Stella Gummow, B.C.'s superintendent of women's institutes and co-ordinator of this interesting project, says that final plans for the cookbook will be made when the provincial women's institute board meets in Victoria in March.

"We hope to have the book ready for printing by the fall and that it will be presented to the public by the last week in May, 1958 — our centennial year."

Art Gallery Luncheon For Artists

Mr. John Kyle was guest of honor at a luncheon arranged by the women's committee at the Art Gallery last Monday. Introduced by Miss Sara Spencer, curator, Colin Graham paid tribute to John Kyle and to Fred Amess, whose exhibitions are now showing at the gallery. In his address, "Artists and Landscapes in the 20th Century," Mr. Graham went on to show how landscapes have progressed from their symbolic painting in the 16th century until the present time when they are representative of our Canadian art, especially here in British Columbia. John Di Castri thanked the curator and expressed the members' appreciation of Mr. Graham's many services to the gallery.

SPRING CAPE

Count Calories, It's Only Sure Way to Lose Weight

Many women feel that they are well on their way to a slim figure if they leave sugar out of their coffee and skip potatoes and bread.

Actually, unless you drink a lot of coffee, the little sugar you use doesn't make much difference, and a baked potato is splendid food and only has about 90 calories.

The only sure way to lose weight is to count your calories. The manner in which you divide them makes no difference in weight loss, but it does make a great difference in your comfort while losing.

The toast and coffee breakfast is apt to lead to fatigue and inefficiency. We hear more and more about this. Not only does the light breakfast make dieting more difficult, but you miss so many of the splendid health foods which you may not get in sufficient quantities in the other meals.

For instance, the egg is a wonderful food, giving you many essentials for best nutrition for only a few calories. One egg is about 75 calories and it contains vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, protein, calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Another reason that eggs are such fine food is because their protein contains all of the essential amino acids. These are the body's building blocks. Eggs should play a large part in reducing menus. Do not fry them. Bake, poach or boil. Even with a dot of butter added they are low in calories count and high in health value.

We should all have at least five a week. You can eat these at breakfast, in salad at lunch or as a part of the main meal at night.

Other breakfast foods such as whole grain cereals and citrus fruits and juices also play an important role in nutrition.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Vitamin Defence," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 37. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Over $660 Netted From Annual Ball

Mrs. J. D. Young entertained members of the Women's Committee to the Victoria Symphony Society at her home, 2530 Lansdowne Road, recently when a report on the eighth annual symphony ball was read by convener, Mrs. E. E. Pearlman. More than $660 was raised from the event.

Mrs. L. N. Roberts gave a preliminary report on the Canadian Players' appearance here on March 12 and 13. The committee will sponsor the performances "Othello" and "Man and Superman."

Miss Diane Douglas Weds H. A. Stratford In Recent Ceremony

In a setting of spring flowers in St. Alban's Church, Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh officiated recently at a ceremony in which Miss Diane Gertrude Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Douglas, 845 Cowper Street, became the bride of Harvey Arthur Stratford, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Stratford of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowning in a full-length dress of white lace and net fashioned with a lace bodice and matching jacket. Her only jewelry was a blue heart-shaped locket with matching earrings. Pink rosebuds and pink carnations in her bridal bouquet were accented with sprays of ivy. Streamers of pink ribbon tied with rosebuds cascaded from her bouquet.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Joan Berry, who chose a ballerina-length gown of pale blue fashioned with lace bodice and jacket. Her bouquet was of deep pink carnations with a spray of ivy.

The groom had Vern Berry as best man, while John Woods and Ron deMontigny ushered guests to pews marked with floral sprays. A reception was held in Loughheed's Banquet Hall, where a three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table. Large baskets of daffodils, fern and iris flanked the table. A Plume proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, the bride wore a suit of imported tweed in a beige and rust tone with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Our Heritage In Pawn?

MR. BENNETT'S deal with Mr. Wenner-Gren, which would hand over one-tenth of British Columbia's area and treasure to a foreign syndicate, is full of danger for the people of this province.

In the first place, we do not know what we are giving away. No one can possibly know what wealth is contained in the 40,000 square miles north of Fort McLeod. What timber, what minerals, what water power, oil, gas and other resources will be revealed by the surveys?

Even the benefactors of this bounty confess that they do not know. If they don't know, how can Mr. Bennett know? But obviously, no organization as experienced as these international financiers would embark on such a venture unless it promised fabulous rewards. And these rewards represent nothing but the heritage of the people of British Columbia.

Does Mr. Bennett even know that the Wenner-Gren interests have the money to finance such a colossal undertaking? How can he be sure that this mysterious syndicate is not seeking a franchise and a monopoly in order to peddle it in the market-places of the world, using our assets as a trading device? Is this a bona-fide deal or a mere stock promotion?

Clearly Mr. Bennett does not know very much about this syndicate when, by his own admission, he did not know, until the fact was published in the press, Continued on Page 12

Police Jail Two

A Victoria man, Barry Irwin Keele, 26, no fixed address, was charged in city police court today with the armed holdup Monday of James Bay branch of Canadian Bank of Commerce.

He reserved election of trial until Friday morning to enable him to obtain counsel.

Saanich policeman, Det. Robin Stewart and Const. Robert A. Peterson, picked up Keele and a companion as they were about to step out of a car on Tolmie Avenue in Saanich at 12.40 a.m. today.

The two were arrested a few minutes later by city detectives Alex Briggs and Gus Munro, who had been working on the case since the robbery at 2.30 p.m. Monday.

The charge stated Keele committed the robbery with an offensive weapon and obtained $3,000 from the bank.

109-YEAR-OLD VALENTINE FOR CENTENARIAN

A fragile, lace-edged Valentine that her mother gave father during their courting days in 1848, was presented today to Mrs. Marion Holdcroft, 412 Linden, who celebrates her 100th birthday Feb. 27. Turned up this week by her son, Gordon, the Valentine contains a wistful verse entitled "Sincere Faith." Thirty-two years later, Mr. Barber noted on the back, "The same to each other, thank God! now as ever. Proved oft in sorrow as in joy. J.B." The Valentine was found among some old papers.—(Times photo)

'FORGOT' TO TELL PREMIER ABOUT PERSONAL TIE-IN

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan this afternoon attempted to bring about a full discussion of the Wenner-Gren development plan for northern B.C. but was ruled out of order in the legislature by Speaker Thomas Irwin.

Gunderson Defends Role In Huge Northern Project

Einar Gunderson said today he "can't see why" he shouldn't act at the same time as executive vice-president of the government-owned PGE and director of the Swedish firm planning a mammoth industrial empire in northern B.C.

The former Social Credit finance minister and government economic adviser was revealed Wednesday as one of three directors of the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Co.

Premier Bennett said it was the first he had heard of his friend's new appointment. "That could possibly be," Mr. Gunderson commented today. "I must have forgotten to tell him. I'm on so many companies."

In a telephone interview with The Times from his Vancouver PGE office, Mr. Gunderson said there was no conflict between the two positions.

"We might as well be in a different province," he said. "The two railways are not serving the same area at all."

The Wenner-Gren interests, backed by Swedish industrialist, financier Axel Wenner-Gren, plan as the first step of the billion-dollar scheme to build a 400-mile railway from the present northern terminus of the PGE to the Yukon border.

"It will guarantee the financial success of the PGE," Mr. Gunderson said.

Mr. Gunderson claimed that he was not approached by the Wenner-Gren interests until after a preliminary agreement was signed with the government last November.

He was not a director, he said, when he signed the "memorandum of intention" Nov. 16 as a witness.

The other two directors, Birger Strid of Stockholm and Bernard Gore of London, signed for the company and Premier Bennett signed for the government.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, who announced the project in the legislature Tuesday, was the other witness.

Mr. Gunderson said he had not acted as economic adviser to the government for a year.

He said he was asked to become a director of the Wenner-Gren company because "they

Amount of Hike Remains in Doubt

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The government is agreed on the principle of increasing old age pensions and other social security payments but a decision still remains to be made on the amount of the increase and the manner in which it is to be paid.

Informed sources said the increase would be between $5 and $10.

The question was discussed during the Liberal caucus Wednesday.

While there was no definite indication given of the government's decision, Liberal members of Parliament came away from the caucus convinced that the government was agreed that there should be an increase in the pension payments.

Three Suggestions Advanced

Three suggestions are: (1) A flat $10 increase to be paid as a supplementary allowance with a means test to old-age pensioners 70 years and over and to those receiving the old-age security payments, in the group 65 to 70. (There are many MPs opposed to the "means" test principle being revived for the aged.) (2) A straight percentage increase across the board of about 15 per cent. This would provide an increase to pensioners of around $6. (The argument for the percentage increase is that it should be applied to family allowance payments as well and many MPs favor that proposition.) (3) A $10 increase to the pensioners but excluding the family allowances. This would cost the treasury about $150,000,000 annually if it is made available not only to the aged but to blind pensioners, disabled pensioners and veterans or their widows.

Straight $10 Increase Favored

Favored proposition appears to be the straight $10 boost in pension payments without a means test. Members don't like the first proposition because of the idea of attaching a means test to the supplementary payment. They don't like the percentage increase because it would work out to less than $10 for pensioners. However, the government must proceed cautiously as adding a $150,000,000 burden to the treasury is a heavy load at this time when Ottawa is confronted with the expected early implementation of the national hospitalization scheme. In order to hold down the added load it might be that the government will only go for a $5-a-month or at the most a $7-a-month increase in pensions, the feeling being that implementation of the national hospitalization scheme would ease the burden on pensioners as they would no longer have hospital bills to worry about. A $7-a-month increase would cost the treasury about $100,000,000.

SYMES TO APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE

DUNCAN—Appeal proceedings will be launched to save Thomas Sydney Symes from the gallows, it was indicated today by his counsel, Alistair I. MacDonald.

Symes, 31, was found guilty in Nanaimo Assize Court Wednesday of the murder of Paul Richard Powling, and was sentenced to hang May 14.

"I have received no definite instructions regarding an appeal," Mr. MacDonald said, "but the usual course of events is that verdicts in matters such as this are appealed. Appeals are almost a matter of course." (See earlier story, Page 12.)

DEMARA IN MORE TROUBLE

RCN's 'Dr. Cyr' Emerges as Teacher

NORTH HAVEN, Me. (AP)—A new, well-liked schoolmaster on this island was identified by police today as a brilliant imposter, with distinguished, though brief, careers as Royal Canadian Navy surgeon, theologian and doctor of philosophy.

He also posed as Robert Linton-French, Ph.D., but his most spectacular role was as Dr. Joseph C. Cyr, Canadian in the Korean campaign who had been praised, at least by laymen, for his skill in difficult surgical procedures.

A local resident told police he noted a similarity between Godgart and the man in a magazine story on Demara two years ago. Fingerprints of Demara matched those of the North Haven teacher.

Officers said Demara, about 35, will be taken to Augusta, the state capital. He has been charged with false pretences in obtaining a teacher's certificate.

Demara has been in Maine before. In the late 1940s he was on the faculty of Notre Dame Institute at Alfred as Cecil Boyce Havmann, a doctor of philosophy in zoology.

He also posed as Robert Linton-French, Ph.D., but his most spectacular role was as Dr. Joseph C. Cyr, Canadian in the Korean campaign who had been praised, at least by laymen, for his skill in difficult surgical procedures.

A local resident told police he noted a similarity between Godgart and the man in a magazine story on Demara two years ago. Fingerprints of Demara matched those of the North Haven teacher.

Mister Bennett wuz surprised t' find his ol' pal on th' Wenner-Gren board. Didn't know th' Gundy wuz loaded.

Seems t' be a one-track mind b'hind that mono-rail.

CAREER IN BRIEF

Einar Gunderson —Who Is He?

By MONTY ROBERTS

wished Canadians on the board.

There will be more British Columbians appointed directors of the firm in the near future, he said.

Another reason Mr. Gunderson gave for his appointment was that the other two directors were going to be out of the province a good deal of the time and he would be here to act on their behalf.

Mr. Gunderson said at present he held only one share in the company to qualify him for membership on the board of directors.

The Wenner-Gren Foundation is a "non-profit" organization in any case, he added.

To a comment by Victoria Liberal M.L.A. George Gregory criticizing his dual capacity as Wenner-Gren director and economic advisor to the government, Mr. Gunderson said:

"I wonder if Mr. Gregory is still fighting the 1953 by-election?"

It was a reference to the spirited contest for the Victoria seat vacated by Percy Wright to make room for Mr. Gunderson after his defeat in the 1953 election.

Mr. Gregory won out and the government gave up its attempts to get Mr. Gunderson elected to the legislature.

Reaction was swift to the disclosure that Mr. Gunderson had been appointed to the Wenner-Gren firm.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan said he should resign from "one or the other" of his positions with the Swedish interests and the PGE.

"It's not ethical, Mr. Strachan said.

The CCF leader also charged that Premier Bennett's statement that he had not known of Mr. Gunderson's appointment was "unbelievable."

"It's too far-fetched," he said. "Our credibility has already been stretched to the breaking point by some of their actions but this is too much," Mr. Strachan said.

The Opposition leader said he expected to find an opportunity during the Throne Speech debate within the next week to "cover the whole issue" of the Wenner-Gren development.

"INTERESTING"

Mr. Strachan said it was "interesting to note that Mr. Gunderson was economic advisor to the government when the initial negotiations for this project took place."

"His close association with the government until now, and the fact that he is now, the director of a company which promises one of the largest developments in this province, must raise the question of the ethic of his conduct in the minds of the people of this province," he said.

"FIRST I'VE HEARD"

When Premier Bennett was queried on the matter he told reporters:

"It's the first I've heard of it. I have no knowledge that Mr. Gunderson is on the board, all I know about the officers of the company was that mentioned in the memorandum of intention."

"Anyway, he's a private citizen."

Lands Minister Williston also said he didn't know about Mr. Gunderson's appointment.

IMPARTIAL?

Mr. Gregory said:

"It does not seem to be possible that Mr. Gunderson could perform his duty as economic adviser to the province of British Columbia impartially, and at the same time be a director of the company on whose behalf such a vast area of the province has been placed under reserve."

Company director Bernard Gore, who will manage the B.C. operations, said he was "astounded" that Mr. Gunderson should be attacked.

"His position with our company has nothing to do with the PGE," Mr. Gore said.

The development plan as a whole was questioned today from a number of quarters.

WARNING

Prominent Canadian industrialist and financier Ronald Graham warned that the scheme "might come a cropper in the end."

"Have these people got their money to follow through?" Mr. Graham asked in a telephone interview from Beverly Hills, Calif., where he is holidaying. "There have been other schemes before this."

B.C. trade officials urged the government not to rush into an agreement with Wenner-Gren.

"It is so large in concept that we hope the citizens of B.C. and interested bodies will have the opportunity to examine it and submit their ideas before anything is finalized," said Brenton S. Brown, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

"GIVE-AWAY"

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C. Yukon Chamber of Mines, said he feared the government was "giving away" one-tenth of the province to a single corporation.

"If the government clamps a reserve on the area for Wenner-Gren it will block the plans of many other large companies interested in northern B.C.," Mr. Elliott said.

Dr. M. V. Smitheringale, well-known B.C. consulting mining engineer and geologist, said the scheme was "outrageous" and "out of order."

Mr. Elliott said companies

Bennett on the eve of the opening of the February, 1954, session of the legislature.

But throughout 1954 he kept an office in the legislative buildings, served as "unofficial" finance minister, and reportedly continues to serve as one of Premier Bennett's closest advisers on matters of policy.

Although he ran three times for the legislature under the Social Credit banner, Mr. Gunderson has not, so far, announced his views on Social Credit monetary theories.

During the 1953 campaign, the Conservative party arranged for questions at nearly all of his campaign meetings, asking for his stand on monetary reform. In each case, he defeated attempts of the hecklers to pin him down.

ORTHODOX

During the same campaign P. A. Gagliardi, minister of highways, said Mr. Gunderson "is the most orthodox financier in Canada."

Mr. Gunderson has made an outstanding success of his private business career. He is a partner in the accounting firms of Gunderson, Stokes, Walton and Co., Vancouver, and Gunderson, Stokes Walton and Cockburn, Victoria.

Mr. Gunderson is a director of many business organizations, two of the principal ones being the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which handles the majority of provincial government such as Consolidated Mining and Smelting "which have contributed largely to the growth and prosperity of the province," should have equal right to develop the area.

"Consolidated's Sullivan mine has produced $2,500,000,000 worth of silver, lead, zinc and tin," he said. "Surely if there are lead and zinc deposits in this McLeod Lake area, they should have the right to go after them."

Mr. Elliott said he knew of at least six companies that have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the area and should have equal rights to stake claims.

COMPLAINT

One large exploration firm has already lodged a complaint over the plan and others are likely to follow suit, he said.

Dr. Smitheringale added:

"If we are foolish enough to give someone a concession today that he can profit from 10 or 15 years from now, we need our heads examined."

"We are very definitely opposed to this deal. It is very much out of order from the mining angle."

Mr. Elliott said the step "could bring us back to the feudal age."

"This sets up a concession system that the mining industry has steered clear of over the years. It is contrary to our system of free enterprise."

NO CONCESSIONS

Premier Bennett has replied to criticism by stating that "no concessions whatsoever" have been made to the Wenner-Gren interests.

"The company has not been granted anything over and above what was mentioned in the letter of intent filed in the legislature on Tuesday," the premier said.

"No special grants have been given. Nor have tax structures been arranged. They will have to pay their fair share. There have been all kinds of giveaways in the past," the Premier added, "but this is not one of them. The people will get their full share of the resources of the province."

banking transactions, and the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Foundation, his directorship in which was effective Nov. 21, 1956, and revealed Wednesday.

A stocky, broad-shouldered man with a full, strong face and shining silver hair, he projects his quiet confidence better from the public platform.

At one time he said "I have always wanted to get into government business."

ALBERTA START

His first connection with government was in Alberta, where he did a small amount of auditing for the United Farmers' government, later set up the lands and mines department, income tax department, and the sales tax department.

In each case, he was the organizing force.

Einar Maynard Gunderson was born in Cooperstown, North Dakota, in 1899, but much of his young life and his advanced education was in Canada.

He graduated from the University of Saskatchewan, served for five years with a firm of chartered accountants in Edmonton before entering government service, and returned to private practice as a chartered accountant, also in Edmonton, in 1936.

AT VANCOUVER

In 1945, he moved to Vancouver, and entered into partnership with G. W. Thompson & Co., income tax specialists, before joining his present firm.

He is married, and has two sons and one daughter. One of the sons, Derek, is with the James Lovick Advertising Agency, which arranged the press conference following announcement of the development project.

EMPIRE OF RICHES

Prince George's '40-Year Dream'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Businessmen here — pioneers and young alike — chuckled and radiated enthusiasm Wednesday at the thought of being the gateway to a planned gigantic industrial empire.

C. A. Warner, editor of the Prince George Citizen, said of the fabulous plans — announced Tuesday in Victoria — of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren for a complete survey of the 40,000 square-mile area north of Prince George:

"It's a 40-year dream, about to come true. It confirms the prediction of the pioneers that our vast hinterland is an 'empire of riches.'"

"It consolidates Prince George as the gateway and the hub of north-central B.C."

The southern boundary of the "Wenner-Gren reserve" runs through Fort McLeod, 75 miles north of Prince George and the southern terminus of the proposed monorail railway.

The northern extension of the PGE Railway will pass through

Fort McLeod, alongside the Hart Highway to the Peace River.

Board of Trade leaders like Al Bowie, Wallie West, Harold Moffat, saw three years ago when the city was hit by a three-month woodworkers' strike that new industry and business must arrive for the city to continue prosperous.

While the Wenner-Gren development plans remain indefinite until results of the current survey are known, they include such industries as pulp mills, steel mills and hydro-electric power plants.

An estimated 4,000,000 horsepower roars undeveloped in the river system north of Prince George.

The Rocky Mountain trench is often described by mining men as a "mineral paradise."

OUR HERITAGE

that his right-hand man, Mr. Einar Gunderson, was one of the syndicate's three directors.

It is unthinkable that a government employee, president of the government's railway, should be involved personally and financially in a deal between the government and private interests. It is incredible that Mr. Bennett did not find these things out before he consummated the deal.

Secondly, apart from Mr. Gunderson, whom are we dealing with? We are dealing with a mysterious syndicate whose backer, Mr. Wenner-Gren, was black-listed during the early days of the war by both Great Britain and the United States for his intimate dealings with the German government, especially with the Luftwaffe chief, Goering. Are these the kind of people who should possess one-tenth of British Columbia?

Thirdly, this deal would close off a vast section of the north, with all its resources, to Canadian enterprise.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, for example, a long-established and famous Canadian organization, along with many others, will be barred from the Wenner-Gren empire under the terms of the "memo of intent." It points out that it has, over the years, produced some $2½ billions worth of mineral wealth for the people of Canada and rightly asks why it should be prevented from producing further wealth, under Canadian management, in the area of monopoly. The same restrictions, of course, apply to any other Canadian company.

In short, this whole deal appears to be improvident, ill-considered, and with the wrong people. Through the association of Mr. Gunderson, it smacks of political patronage on a staggering scale.

All British Columbians who value their heritage should insist that their members in the legislature examine every detail of this scheme before a tenth of the province is placed in pawn.

TIMES EXCLUSIVE ON SATURDAY

Victoria Girl to Tell Story Of Miracle Escape From Wreck

Why was 13-year-old Anita Goertz saved by an apparent miracle when her father's yacht was wrecked off the coast of Spain last January and all the rest of her family drowned?

In Weekend Magazine, included with next Saturday's Times, an exclusive article by Eva-Lis Wuorio will say the people of Aviles, the little village on the northern coast of Spain where the tragedy occurred believe that "God must have a plan for her."

Anita's father, Helmut Goertz, widely known Victoria photographer; her mother and brother drowned when the Goertz 47-ton yacht was caught in the grip of a fearful storm and broken to pieces close to shore.

Horrified spectators saw the yacht break up—but some considerable time later a giant wave deposited a dark-haired child on the sands.

It was Anita.

The girl later recovered from her ordeal at Gijon and was subsequently brought back to Canada to live with her uncle in Edmonton.

In the Weekend article Miss Wuorio recounts the tragedy, capturing all its horror, and relates how the people of the little fishing village have reacted to it. They tell a stranger quite simply: "She is a child of God, this little one. She is in His hands."

Anita agrees. In a companion piece in Weekend she tells her own story of the tragedy to Stephen Franklin. The for-

Duncan Logger to Hang For New Year's Killing

'I Am Very Sorry' Says Symes,
May 14 Set as Date on Gallows

NANAIMO (CP)—Thomas Sydney Symes, 31-year-old logger, was found guilty Wednesday night of murder and sentenced to be hanged May 14 for the New Year's Day shooting of Paul Powling, 25.

POLICE

None of the money has been recovered.

The second man is being detained, but may be released, police said.

Two men were responsible for the hold-up, according to witnesses. One man remained outside the bank in a stolen get-away car.

WENT TO SEATTLE

Police said the two suspects had driven to Nanaimo Monday, and had gone aboard the 4:15 p.m. ferry to Vancouver. Then they drove to Seattle, where they spent Wednesday, and it is believed they had just arrived back from their trip when arrested.

Keele appeared in court wearing a brown tweed topcoat and open-necked shirt.

The Assize Court jury deliberated 3½ hours before returning the verdict at 7:30 p.m. Symes received the verdict without emotion but told Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, who presided:

"There is very little I can say. I am very sorry about the whole thing. I don't mean from the standpoint of my being hung—I understand it is the death penalty—but for his (Powling's) family and my family and my son. I still say it was not premeditated."

Turning to the jurors, Symes said he bore them no animosity. "You did as you saw fit," he said.

Symes had testified that he found Powling, a long-time friend, with his arms around Symes' estranged wife in her rooming-house bedroom at Duncan.

Symes said he "lost control" of himself but that he didn't remember shooting Powling. The victim was found New Year's Day by an ambulance driver in the room of Ramona Symes, 27, with a fatal bullet wound in the chest.

Symes and his wife had separated Dec. 12 after four years of marriage.

Alistair I. Macdonald, defence counsel, said he had no statement to make regarding an appeal.

A. G. McCulloch, Crown counsel, called the shooting of Powling a "cold-blooded and deliberate murder."

Strike-Torn City Prays For Wounded Infant

PRINCETON, Ind. (AP)—Churches in this strike-bound community were opened for noon prayers today as slight improvement was reported in the condition of a non-striker's baby, shot through the head.

Hospital officials reported Julia Ann Russell, four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Russell, still in critical condition but slightly improved.

The baby, struck by one of seven bullets fired into her parents'

trailer home at Oakland City early Wednesday, is paralyzed on her left side but is able to take food.

The International Association of Machinists, on strike at the plant since Nov. 5 over dismissals, offered a $1,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the person who fired the bullets.

Earlier, Potter and Brumfield offered $2,500 reward in the trailer shooting and in previous incidents, in which a non-striker's cottage was dynamited and another's home was peppered with shot.
